RECORD CROWDS TURN OUT TO GREET REINSTATED PLAYERS

Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel of New York Yankees and Bill Piercy of Red Sox Eligible to Play Today, as Landis Grants Applications for Reinstatement

CHICAGO, May 20.—(By the Associated Press) Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel of the New York Yankees today were reinstated by Baseball Commissioner Landis.

The home run king is eligible to start his drive for 1923 slugging honors in this afternoon's game with the St. Louis Browns at New York.

The telegram from Ruth and Meusel was received at the commissioner's office about 3:50 a. m. The judge was not there but his secretary, Leslie O'Connor, had received his instructions last night and promptly sent telegrams to Ruth and Meusel reading as follows:

"Your reinstatement applications granted effective immediately. (Signed)

"KENNESAW M. LANDIS."

A third telegram was sent to umpires Chitt and Owens reading:

"Ruth and Meusel reinstated effective immediately. Eligible for today's game. (Signed)

"K. M. LANDIS."

The applications for reinstatement from Ruth and Meusel were identical. They read:

"I hereby respectfully apply for immediate reinstatement to enable me to play in the game here today, Saturday, May 20."

An application for reinstatement was received from Bill Piercy of the Boston Red Sox, the third of the players barred from baseball by Judge Landis for playing post-season games and he also was reinstated.

Piercy's telegram follows:

"I hereby make application for reinstatement to enable me to pitch a game today, May 20, kindly wire."

Pres. Bagley Accuses Mayor of "Trying to Fool Council and Deceive the Public"

Says He Will Not Even Read Order Appropriating Money for Auditorium

Money Should Not Be Transferred From Surplus Over-lay Account, He Claims

Dr. Patrick J. Bagley, president of the city council—hot under the collar today accused Mayor George H. Brown of "trying to fool the council and deceive the public" in the matter of obtaining money for the maintenance of the Memorial Auditorium.

"I have kept quiet long enough on this question," said Dr. Bagley, "and when the mayor has the presumption to publicly accuse the council of delaying the opening of the Auditorium by refusing to appropriate money for its upkeep, I want to tell him and the people of Lowell that he is trying to put over something that I won't stand for."

"I favor opening the Auditorium, as

REPORT OF CITY AUDIT

State Director of Accounts Makes a Number of Important Recommendations

Condemns Overdrafts and Transfers to Piece Out Depleted Appropriations

A statement to the effect that all value of a carefully prepared budget is destroyed if transfer orders are passed at the end of the year to take care of overdrafts, is the substance of a recommendation included in the report of the state audit made of the city books and accounts this year and received today by Mayor Brown from Theodore N. Waddell, director of accounts, state department of corporations and taxation.

The recommendation, which is one of several that are considered of no little importance as they relate to the methods of handling the city's bookkeeping, calls particular attention to and condemns a practice of overdrawing appropriation accounts and making adjustments by transferring moneys from

NO CONVICTION ON SUSPICION

Every Man Has a Right to Have a Still in His Own House

It is up to the Officers to Bring in Evidence of Traffic

Judge Thomas J. Enright made two important rulings in district court this morning in connection with liquor cases. The first of these was that he would refuse to make orders of guilty in cases where the officers were charged unless they could be shown by the officers. In the second case, he said to Deputy Hugh J. Enright, "If you want to bring in officers to bring in evidence of traffic, I cannot find a man guilty on suspicion. A person has a right to have a still in his house. Even though it may be found in operation, this does not go to prove illegal keeping." The other ruling was a matter of opinion that a man arrested in connection with a case of illegal sale from the person, a charge of illegal keeping was also lodged against him by the arresting officers. In this connection the court said that he thought to place two charges was crowding the defendant

Endowed by the mayor, who has issued a proclamation, the drive is backed by many prominent men of the city within the hour. Mayor, Adj. Mark Arnold and his corps of assistants will attempt to collect the amount of money considered necessary to carry on part of the work.

CITY COUNCIL TO VOTE ON WELCH'S REINSTATEMENT TONIGHT

Special Meeting Called to Bring Mandamus Case to a Close—Decision of Chief Justice Rugg and Possibilities of Future Course of Mayor Brown High Lights of Discussion

Overshadowing all other matters political in the city this week is the decision of the justices of the supreme court on the petitions for writs of mandamus asked for by Mayor George H. Brown and W. C. MacFarlane and which made up the most exacting test to which the charter could have been submitted.

Now that the decision has come and the opinion in full as written by Chief Justice Rugg has been published, questions by the score arise as to the possible turns the matter will take before finally settled.

Paramount stands the question: What will the city council do at its special meeting at 7 o'clock tonight.

When the matter of reinstating Redmond Welch to office will go to a vote? At a private conference of councilors held last night, it was decided that immediate action should be taken and, therefore, a special meeting was set at the earliest possible time.

If the council reinstates the deposed chief, its action must be construed to mean that the mayor's charges against him are not sustained, while, if reinstatement is denied him, the charges will be upheld and he is permanently out of the office of superintendent.

Likewise, if he is reinstated, which virtually means found not guilty of

Jewett is Said to be Foremost Among the Present Candidates

(Special to The Sun)

BOSTON, May 20.—Those visiting the legislative halls during the past week have noted that two queries have been propounded with great frequency whenever debate has lagged. One of these has been "When do we get through," and the other, "Who will be speaker of the house next year?"

The first question is not difficult to answer for although talk of re-election next week still continues, seasoned observers are betting that the end of the present session will come June 9 or 10.

As to the second question, however, there is much difference of opinion, for

"LISTENING IN" AT CITY HALL

Rumored That Redmond Welch May Seek Retirement on Pension

Mayor May Send MacBrayne's Name to Council for Police Superintendent

Rumors that Redmond Welch will seek retirement on a pension if he is reinstated by the city council to the office of superintendent of police and a statement by Mayor Brown that he is considering seriously the matter of sending the name of Winfred C. MacBrayne to the council tonight as a nominee for the position of superintendent, were the high lights of the forenoon at city hall today.

Not a great deal could be gleaned on the matter of the Welch retirement on a pension, but it was said on good authority that he is being so advised by a number of intimate friends and from one source came the statement that already he has taken preliminary steps by discussing the matter with the city physician.

If the deposed chief should seek and be granted retirement on pension, there would be a vacancy created in the office and under the charter such a vacancy might be filled by the mayor or through a temporary appointment that might well continue throughout the administration.

The only way such a temporary appointment could be ousted would be by the institution of removal charges against him by the city council, which body has that power under the charter provisions.

In discussing tonight's meeting of the council, Mayor Brown made the statement that he is considering the proposition to nominate Mr. MacBrayne for the position of superintendent "as a vindication," as he termed it, but had not definitely made up his mind.

MANY MILES FROM HOME

Lowell Man and Woman

Meet in Africa—Story of Interesting Trip

The oft repeated statement that this is indeed a small world, was never more forcibly proven than when a Lowell boy and girl met recently 10,000 miles from home. The meeting was sort of a chance one and happened in far-off Africa. The boy was Leo G. Morin of 235 Salem street, a widely known local mail carrier, and the girl, Rev. Sister St. Francoise, who was formerly Miss Melina Caron. The meeting took place in Algiers.

Mr. Morin, who has just returned home from a three-months' tour of Europe, Asia and Africa, was passing through Algiers and remembering that he had read in The Sun last year that Sister St. Francoise was stationed somewhere in that country, he determined to make an attempt to communicate with her. Naturally he turned his steps towards a convent and inquired if Sister St. Francoise was there. Myo minutes later the very person he sought stood before him, her face beaming a welcome to her former acquaintance and classmate. Mr. Morin told her all of the news of Lowell. The two spoke intimately of school days and briefly Mr. Morin related to his hostess what had transpired in Lowell since her departure last year. Upon leaving the convent Mr. Morin was requested by Sister St. Francoise to make a personal call at the home of her parents in this city and also to extend her greetings to her many friends and acquaintances in Lowell.

Mr. Morin left Lowell Feb. 11 on a three-months' trip abroad for the benefit of his health and also for sight-seeing. He first landed in England and after making a tour of the British Isles, journeyed to France and there visited the battlefields and other points of interest. Later he crossed into Spain and after spending some time in that country, went to Italy. He spent several days in Rome and was given an audience by the pope through the courtesy of Rev. William McAdams, O.M.I., a student at the American college at Rome and son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan McAdams of this city.

From Italy Mr. Morin visited several important cities in Portugal, Greece and Turkey and then journeyed to Palestine, visiting the Holy Land. His next stop was in Algiers, Algeria, where his happy meeting with Rev. Sister St. Francoise took place.

Sister St. Francoise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Caron of 512 Moody street. She joined the White Nuns of Africa in Canada about a year ago and a few months later set sail for Africa, where she is now doing missionary work.

Morin, in Africa, was another place visited by the Lowell tourist and the recital of his experiences in the foreign lands is most interesting. Speaking about Cairo, Egypt, where he spent ten days, Mr. Morin said it is one of the most interesting cities he has seen. "Of course," he stated, "the Arabian section is rather dirty, but the modern quarters inhabited by Europeans and tourists are very neat. There are beautiful wide streets of asphalt and sidewalks of cement and the stores and buildings in the shopping district easily compare with those in Boston. The hotels are large and comfortable, and the food is excellent. I suppose I appreciated it more because I had just left Palestine."

Referring to Palestine, Mr. Morin said that the place is filled with beggars. "I'll admit that there are some real honest-to-goodness beggars there," he continued, "but also I know that many of them are impostors." After leaving Egypt Mr. Morin returned to France and later went to Rome. It was during his brief stay there that he met Rev. Fr. McAdams, O.M.I. From Paris the Lowellian went to London by airplane, a little excursion he enjoyed immensely. The fare from Paris to London via the sky route was 300 francs and that in-

"LOVE NEST" FEATURE OF ST. MARGARET'S PARTY

"A Love Nest," a new and novel feature, will be the big prize awarded in connection with the St. Margaret's parish lawn party to be held at the Casino on Thursday, afternoon and evening, June 23.

The "love nest" consists of a complete overfurnished tapestry parlor suite, with handsome art square, floor lamp, and in fact everything needed to completely furnish the "best room" in any residence.

The committee in charge of the feature made a tour of the city's furniture stores and selected what, in the opinion of the members, was the best suite obtainable and then secured other articles in keeping and thoroughly in harmony with the major pieces.

Books have been distributed among the parishioners and already it is reported the chances to participate in the drawing are going like "hot cakes." If all the books are accounted for, the drawing will take place the day of the party. If not, just as soon as complete returns are made.

The "love nest" will be on display in Gookin's furniture store, Prescott street, next week.

cluded automobile transportation from the hotel to aerodrome. The trip took three hours. While in Paris he visited the St. Louis chapel, which contains the remains of Napoleon Bonaparte, and also ascended to the top of the Eiffel tower. He passed under the Arc de Triomphe, where are kept the remains of the unknown American soldier.

The young man was scheduled to sail on his return voyage from Liverpool, but because of strike troubles on the water front there, he changed his plans and sailed from Southampton a few days ago. He expects to resume his duties at the postoffice on June 1.

Company competition—First, Company B, Capt. Everett Humphreys; second, Company F, Capt. Raymond Sullivan; third, Company G, Capt. David Connors.

Individual competition—Eleven survivors to compete for three prizes a week from yesterday—Norman W. McCallum, Warren H. Chesley, Thomas A. Kelley, Ralph R. Butler, Kommenus Soukarras, Edward W. Bishop, Lucien Cabral, Bernard H. Greene, John G. Parker, David G. Browning and Merrill Calkins.

Squad competition—Fifth squad of Company A, commanded by Acting Corp. Alonzo Goddard; fourth squad of Company C, commanded by Corp. Frank Ricard; fourth squad of Company F, commanded by Corp. Morris Cohen.

These companies, individuals and squads will compete for prizes at the field day exercises on next Friday afternoon.

Yesterday afternoon there were eight companies competing for company drill honors, twenty-six individual competitors and eight squads. In the squad drill, five squads were eliminated, leaving three to compete for the medals offered by Capt. Alfred Gustafson and officers of the Combat Train, M.G. These medals are of gold with the exception of one, a bronze, which will be presented to the non-commissioned officer commanding the winning squad.

Sgt. Colby T. Kittredge, drillmaster of the regiment, in commenting on the drilling, said this year's drilling showed considerable improvement over that of past years.

The companies were drilled and noted on four general points: Battle Manual, Manual of Arms, etc., for which the maximum number of points was 50; for company maneuvers, 200 points and for discipline, posture and carriage, 100 points.

The judges of the competition were: Capt. Royal P. White and Lieut. Edward W. Daly of G company, and Capt. Albert Bergeron of B company, State Guard.

Principal Henry H. Harris and Coach James F. Conway figured the points in the company competition.

FOR MAINTENANCE OF SUMMER CAMP

The various grade and high school girls' teams of the Y.W.C.A. conducted a campaign today to raise funds for the maintenance of "Weldmoors," the summer camp. When the budget was made up, a few days ago it was found that there was not enough money to carry on the summer camp in the

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN
NEW YORK, May 18.—A fortune estimated at $200,000 goes begging while a determined woman keeps her 12-year-old son in hiding.

Will her mother love conquer her antipathy for the boy's father and everything pertaining to him? Two New York lawyers are wondering. They are the executors of the will of Col. Frederick J. Barrett, famous surgeon, whose country-wide search for his divorced wife and kidnapped son ended tragically with his death recently.

"He was hard-headed," says Andrew A. Fraser, an old friend, "a real 'he-man'."

But a frail woman bent him! She kept him from winning back their boy; and the father died—heart-broken.

War Breaks Up Home
Dr. Barrett and his family lived happily until the beginning of the war. The physician enlisted and was detailed to the base hospital at Augusta, Ga.

Mrs. Barrett went with him. But she found difficulty adjusting herself to the new conditions. In New York she had been living in luxury; in the south she had to live on the meagre salary of an army officer. The doctor's new work took him away from his family for the first time in his life. His wife began making friends of her own.

Dr. Barrett sued for divorce, then dropped the action. "He loved his son too dearly," says a friend, "to disrupt the family permanently."

"The boy was sent to a New England school. He led in athletics. His father was very happy—for a while. But conditions at home did not change. A new action for divorce was started—and carried to a finish. Then began a fight for possession of the boy. The father was awarded his custody."

While the youngster was home for the Easter vacation in 1920, he was kidnapped on Broadway. After a long time detectives reported they had located him in Hollywood with his mother.

Before his father could get him, the lad was spirited to Arizona. Another hunt. Once more the boy was found and was with his father for Christmas.

Dr. Barrett became ill. He had to go south for his health. So he took his son to Asheville, N. C. But Mrs. Barrett loved the boy too well to give him up.

A short time later, the boy was seized on a street in Asheville and rushed away in an automobile.

In the midst of his new search the father died—bequeathed his estate of $200,000 to the youngster. The question is, will his mother let him claim it?

THE VICTORY BISCUIT COMPANY PLANT

The above is a photograph of the Victory Biscuit Company plant at the corner of Market, Shattuck and Dutton streets, the newest industry to be added to Lowell's long and diversified list. The new company has already started a very active season in the manufacture of ice cream cones. The plant is equipped with a battery of 75 cone making machines, operated by gas, and has a total capacity of 150,000 cones daily. There is also a large mixing machine for

TASTY WAYS TO PREPARE ASPARAGUS

If you have grown tired of plain buttered or creamed asparagus try some of these recipes.

These dishes should be used for luncheon as the main dish. There is a whole lot of nourishment in them, making them too hearty for a dinner vegetable served with meat and potatoes.

Asparagus in Casserole

Two bunches of asparagus, 2 cups milk, 4 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, stale bread.

Cut bread in slices two inches thick, cut in rounds with a biscuit cutter. Cut out the center of each circle, leaving a case one-half inch thick. Dip in melted butter and brown slightly in a hot oven.

Cut asparagus in inch lengths. Put in sauce pan with milk and simmer 15 minutes. Add butter and eggs well beaten, salt and pepper. Cook over hot water till sauce coats the spoon. Fill the crusts with mixture.

Dip the small pieces of bread out from the larger rounds in melted butter and fit on the top of each crustade. Put on a buttered dripping pan and put in a hot oven for five minutes. The top should brown slightly. Serve at once.

Luncheon Asparagus

Two bunches asparagus, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 hard boiled eggs, 1 canned plumato. Wash and scrape asparagus. Tie in small bundles and cook in boiling salted water with the heads out for 15 minutes. Put heads under water and cook 10 minutes. Drain and arrange on a hot platter. Remove strings.

Melt butter and fry crumbs to a pale straw color. Sprinkle over asparagus. Arrange slices of hard boiled eggs in a circle around asparagus, garnish with strips of plumato and serve at once.

Asparagus au Gratin

Two small bunches asparagus or 1 large bunch, 1 cup white sauce, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, buttered crumbs, salt and pepper, few gratings nutmeg.

Boil asparagus till tender in slightly salted boiling water. Drain and remove strings from bundles. Put a layer in a well-buttered baking dish. Cover with white sauce and a few gratings of nutmeg, salt and pepper. Add another layer of asparagus and white sauce with seasonings. Continue layer for layer till all is used. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and cover with grated cheese. Put in a hot oven for 15 minutes to melt the cheese and brown the crumbs.

POLICE OFFICERS ARE COMMENDED

The following police officers were commended last night in orders issued by the acting superintendent: Capt. David Petrie, Sergt. James Kennedy and Officers Cooney, Moore, Lynch, Garrity and Johnson.

The order was as follows: "The following letter has been received from the chief of police of Portland, Me.:

"Supt. of Police, Lowell, Mass.
"Dear Sir:—In behalf of the Portland police department I want to commend you and your wonderful force for the excellent work they did in the capture of Frank Onda for this department."

"I very clearly demonstrated to me that you have a force of men who are absolutely without fear and are ready and willing at all times to take a chance of possibly sacrificing their lives because we know this man is a dangerous character and would stop at nothing in order to gain his liberty."

"In the future if there is anything that this department from myself down can do for you people, let us know and we will go the limit."

"Again thanking you and congratulating you on your good work, I am
"Yours respectfully,
"I. S. WATTS, Chief of Police."

2. Capt. David Petrie is hereby commended for the arrest of Frank Onda, escaped murderer, a fugitive from justice, wanted by the police of Portland, Me. This man is described as a dangerous Russian Bolshevik with a very bad record, who went to Portland with the intention of killing his brother-in-law, which he succeeded in doing. Capt. Petrie was notified by the Lawrence police department that Onda might be in Lowell and that he would call his wife in Lawrence by telephone. The local telephone exchange operator was notified to watch for such a call and to notify the police station at once. When this call did come later, Capt. Petrie, with a

HARVEY'S DAUGHTER TESTS NEW GUN

Mrs. Marceline Thompson, daughter of George Harvey, ambassador to England and daughter-in-law of Col. John T. Thompson, tries out the new light-weight machine gun invented by Thompson.

MRS. ALEXANDER BRADLEY'S FIVE-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER DANGEROUSLY ILL

Here is a little bit of true life put into a letter. Mrs. Alexander Bradley of Danbury, Conn., says: "After 14 long years trying different remedies I have at last found a good medicine—Dr. True's Elixir."

"I was nearly discouraged. I was giving the oldest girl something nearly every night, but now I keep a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir handy, and only give it occasionally. I have tried so many things but now as soon as I see signs of worms I give Dr. True's Elixir for quick relief."

"My son, 14 years of age, was always troubled with worms when small and Dr. True's was unknown to me then. I always have it on hand now, as I have another small child. They even ask for more. Now please print this letter so other anxious mothers may know the good results which follow Dr. True's Elixir for children suffering with worms and constipation, as I cannot recommend it too highly."

Symptoms to watch: Constipation, offensive breath, swollen upper lip, deranged stomach, Occasional pains, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, short, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

A great deal of sickness comes from irregular bowels, a vital part of the body. At the first signs of constipation give Dr. True's Elixir—for it is the right kind—pleasant to take, with no gripping or distressing after-effects.

A well-known New Yorker writes: "While visiting in historic old Plymouth (Mass.), my family became acquainted with your Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. It does all you claim for it in aiding digestion and relieving insomnia and constipation. Please ship me six large size bottles, for mother is in need of it."—Wm. I. Ralph.

Nearly every grown-up as well as every child needs a laxative. Keep the bowels regular by using Dr. True's Elixir. 40c—60c—$1.20.

HURT IN COLLISION

A motorcycle operated by Daniel Aguilera and an automobile in charge of Philippe J. Foley collided at the corner of Moody and Hanover streets last evening. Aguilera sustained a broken ankle and was treated at St. Mary's hospital.

Quarter Century Ago

Quarter of a century ago we had a quo warranto case brought by the attorney general to oust certain democratic officials from office in order to make way for republicans, as the following from the old Sun will indicate: "Today, the quo warranto cases of the attorney general vs. Charles H. Callahan vs. Daniel J. Donahue and vs. James H. Cahill are being tried in Boston before the full bench.

"The questions to be decided in these several cases are whether Charles H. Callahan or George L. Fowler is superintendent of streets; whether Daniel J. Donahue or F. W. Quin is city solicitor; and whether J. H. Cahill or Frank Goring is city messenger.

"The decision of these cases will cause great relief in this city and place one official in charge where two are now claiming the right to each of the three offices mentioned.

"For Callahan will appear Hon. Thos. J. Gargan and Philip J. Farley; for Donahue Mr. Gargan and Gargan himself; for Cahill Mr. Gargan.

"Mr. Quin represented by Trull and Wier and he will represent Messrs. Fowler and Goring."

The first set of officials mentioned were democrats, the others were republicans. The cases were heard and the decision against the democrats, who were appointed by Mayor Courtney in virtue of the power vested in him under the amended city charter. The republicans, however, went to the legislature and had the appointing power taken from the mayor, and under the new provision republican officials were elected by the city council to supersede the democrats. The latter were ousted.

Hood Farm Sale

In the olden days the annual sale of thoroughbred horses at the Hood farm attracted a great many horsemen and horse breeders from all over the country. From the old Sun I copy a short extract from the account of one of the sales at the Hood farm in 1897. The Hood farm was then noted for its high bred horses. In this particular sale, Mr. Edmund H. Conant was the old horse and there is probably no man in the country who could dilute upon the fine points of a thoroughbred horse more expertly than could Mr. Conant. Speaking of the sale, the old Sun said:

"As the general Dr. Holmes said in his quaint way of how the parson's established under an act of congress in 1801 and repealed in 1802.

"The first Judge Lowell was a member of the convention which framed the constitution of Massachusetts in 1780 and procured the insertion of the first article of the bill of rights for the purpose, as he declared, of preventing slavery from being thereafter possible in the state."

The deceased was educated in the private school of Daniel G. Ingraham, a noted Boston school in its day.

He graduated at Harvard in the famous class of 1843, which included among its members Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun and ex-President Hill of Harvard. He studied law in the Harvard law school, graduating from there in 1845, ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes being a classmate. Judge Lowell was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1849.

"In March, 1855, he was made judge in the district court in the United States by President Lincoln and in 1875 was appointed by President Hayes justice of the circuit court for the first session.

"In May, 1884, he resigned and returned to the general practice of law with offices in Boston.

"Judge Lowell married May 19, 1853, Miss Lucy B. Emerson, daughter of George B. Emerson, LL.D. They had two sons and two daughters. John, a member of the Suffolk bar and associated with his father in practice; James Arnold, a graduate of Harvard in 1894; Lucy Buckminster and Susan, who married William H. Aspinwall of Lowell.

THE OLD TIMER.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year at the annual meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of the Lexington Avenue school, held recently: Mrs. William Morris, president; Mrs. James A. Edwards, vice president; Mrs. Hugo D. Dick, secretary; Miss Maria M. Hart, treasurer. At the close of the business session, entertainment numbers were furnished by Miss Sarah E. Lowell of the Normal and Mrs. Mary Goodwin and Fred Cummings.

As one of the leading boosters of Lowell, Judge Lowell was a historic figure. The following article from the old Sun relative to Judge Lowell is of so much historic interest that I feel justified in presenting it in this column in order to show the Judge's relation to the man for whom our city was named and to cite other facts of historical interest in connection with the Lowell family.

"John Lowell, ex-judge of the U. S. circuit court, died at his home in Brookline at 4.05 this morning. The deceased was born in Boston Oct. 4, 1824, the son of John Amory and Susan Cabot Lowell. His father was a prominent Boston merchant, connected as treasurer and director with several mills in Lowell and his mother was a daughter of Francis C. Lowell after whom the city of Lowell was named.

His paternal grandfather was a prominent lawyer and his great-grandfather, Judge John Lowell, was the first judge of the district court for the Massachusetts district appointed by President Washington on Sept. 25, 1783, and in 1801 made by President John Adams, chief judge of the circuit court, as then existing for the first circuit, established under an act of congress in 1801 and repealed in 1802.

"The first Judge Lowell was a member of the convention which framed the constitution of Massachusetts in 1780 and procured the insertion of the first article of the bill of rights for the purpose, as he declared, of preventing slavery from being thereafter possible in the state."

The deceased was educated in the private school of Daniel G. Ingraham, a noted Boston school in its day. He graduated at Harvard in the famous class of 1843, which included among its members Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun and ex-President Hill of Harvard. He studied law in the Harvard law school, graduating from there in 1845, ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes being a classmate. Judge Lowell was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1849.

SCHOOL JANITORS HOLD CONCERT AND DANCE

Lowell public school janitors staged an excellent concert and dance in the school hall last evening, and every detail of the program was thoroughly enjoyed from beginning to end. The affair was in aid of the national and state convention of public school janitors' associations, which will be held in Lowell on the 12th and 13th of July. Mayor Brown was present as a guest of the association, and members of the school committee voiced their approval of the enjoyable evening.

Lynch and Fred Cummings; accompanists, Loretta A. Hannaford, Ethel Caster and Charles P. Miner.

After the program was brought to a close, general dancing was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening, with the following officers in charge: General manager, John D. Tooy; assistant general manager, Timothy F. Rohan; floor director, Patrick H. Kelley; assistant floor director, John J. Shields; child aids, John H. Condon, Thomas J. Miles; chairman, reception committee, William F. Thornton; secretary, Terrence F. Casey; treasurer, Thomas M. Keegan.

Vampires Ready for a Come-Back on the Silver Screen

ESTELLE TAYLOR'S IDEA OF A VAMPIRE. SHE PLAYS THE-DA BARA'S OLD ROLE IN 'A POOL THERE WAS'.

THE EUROPEAN IDEA OF THE VAMPIRE TYPE AS POR-TRAYED BY MME. HOCABERT IN ITALIAN MOVIES.

BY JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, May 19.—It is time for the style of movie drama to move into a new cycle, the shock craze having run its course. Changes in fashions of photodramas are usually coincident with changes of clothing styles. The shock picture is now consigned to the discard along with the low-heeled, fuzzy-haired fopper.

And when styles change there are always several modes that bid for favor. The 1923 film fashion catalogue calls for melodrama, sweet romances—and vampire plays.

The melodramas are too numerous to mention. Mary Pickford's new version of "Tess of the Storm Country" is typical of the new romances. Another revival marks the return of the vamp film. It is "A Fool There Was," starring Estelle Taylor. French and Italian producers are also turning their attention to the vamp picture.

And Theda Bara, the most famous vamp of them all, is coming back to the movies, but she will not appear as a vamp.

Paramount announces 41 pictures for fall and winter release. Attention has been called to many of them in these columns before.

Tom Meighan will be starred in another George Ade story, "Back Home and Back." Betty Compson and Bert Lytell will be co-starred in "Kick in." Wallace Reid is to do "Thirty Days." Rudolph Valentino will be starred in "The Spanish Cavalier" and "The Young Rajah."

Lila Lee, James Kirkwood, Raymond Hatten and George Fawcett are to be featured in "Ebb Tide." Babe Daniels will be directed in "Notoriety" by William DeMille. Penrhyn Stanlaw will direct her in "Silent Wings."

Alma Lee is scheduled for "Missing Millions" and "Anna Ascends." Dorothy Dalton and Jack Holt will be co-starred in "On the High Seas."

Vincente Blasco Ibanez's "Enemies of Women" will be filmed. These Roberts will be supported in "The Old Homestead" by T. Roy Barnes, George Fawcett and Clio Riggway.

Mary Pickford has decided to shorten her revival of "Tess of the Storm Country" to "Tess" but she will do it in eight reels instead of five. Lloyd Hughes will have the part played by the late Harold Lockwood. Gloria Hope, David Torrence, Forrest Robinson, Jean Herschelt, Danny Hoy, Robert Russell and Madame Bodamere are other members of the cast. Filming has started.

The Movie Chatterbox
Why we use the wedding ring and what it means is to be illustrated in the next Pathé Review. What it means is no problem, but why we use it is something else again.

Yes, they still change them. "For Love or Money" is now "Crossroads of New York." Kathryn McGuire, Noah Beery, Ethel Gray Terry, Robert Cain, George O'Hara, Herbert Standing, William Revann, Mildred June and Charlie Murray.

Anna Forest will be leading lady to George Arliss in "The Silent Voice." Effie Shannon and Edward Earle are also in the cast.

Lillian Gish is negotiating for film rights to "Three Wise Fools." She plans to direct it and star in it.

William Ernum will make only two pictures for the 1922-23 season. Dustin will make six.

In the last month Goldwyn has engaged as directors Marshall Neilan, Allen Holubar, Maurice Tourneur and R. A. Walsh and signed a new contract with Rupert Hughes.

And now another film is to be made to show the world what a quiet life people lead in Hollywood at night. Jackie Coogan, Baby Peggy and Brownie should be starred.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By Theatres' Own Press Agent)

THE STRAND THEATRE

Another Series of High-Grade Pictures For Next Week—The Attractions Speak For Themselves—Bicycle Contest.

The same high-grade picture creations that have marked the more recent programs at the Strand will be shown again at Lowell's biggest and handiest theatre during the coming week. For the first three days, beginning with the matinee on Monday, Pauline Frederick will be the attraction. Women will be one feature, and the other will be "Eden and Return," with Doris May the star. For the week-end Tom Mix will be the attraction. The "Who Kid" and "Sky-High" will be shown. The usual comedy and weekly as well as musical features will add materially to the enjoyment of both bills.

Attention is again directed to the bicycle contest being conducted at the theatre. It opened last week and will continue to July 10, at which time the winner of the contest will be awarded a handsome bicycle. Each person purchasing a ticket is entitled to a coupon on which may be written the name and address of his or her favorite. These coupons are then placed in a box and credited to the boy whose name is written thereon. The bicycle is a dandy. If you don't believe it just

"Bought and Paid For." Noted Stage Success, Film Feature For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Another of those always entertaining Merrimack Square programs has been arranged for Sunday afternoon and evening at the popular Paige street theatre. The feature attractions will be Elaine Hammerstein, the beautiful and talented star, in "Remorseless Love," and Bessie Barriscale, another popular screen favorite, in "The Midlander." The latter's surrounding program will also be carried out.

Topping off a big triple-feature bill for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be "Bought and Paid For," the noted story of married life, with Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt in the leading roles. This is another of William de Mille's splendid productions for Paramount and is a literal translation of George Broadhurst's famous stage success. In screen form it is even more vivid and impressive. The story is of a millionaire husband who marries a working girl and lavishes upon her costly gifts. For a while they are happy until the husband repeatedly comes home drunk. His gorgeous woman of fine sensibilities is horrified. At last the climax comes and when she refuses to kiss him he insults her by saying that he has bought her and paid for her and, therefore, owns her. This causes a breach. The ensuing events and the dramatic reconciliation make the picture highly enjoyable.

A cast which fairly sparkles with stars was assembled to enact the important roles in "Bought and Paid For." Agnes Ayres, the new Paramount star who made her stellar debut in "The Lane That Had No Turnings," has long been a leading favorite. She has been starred in such productions as "Forbidden Fruit" and has supported stars in "The Love Special" and "Too Much Speed." Jack Holt, who plays the role of the husband, is a full-fledged star who has recently been seen in "The Call of the North," "The Lost Romance" and other successful productions.

A revelation of the possibilities of screen comedy will be had in "The Beauty Shop," the second big feature for the first half of the week at the Merrimack Square theatre. Starring Raymond Hitchcock and an all-star cast, this Cosmopolitan-Paramount production signals the return to the screen of the famous comedian who is known throughout the United States. The story of "The Beauty Shop" is that of Dr. Arbutus Budd, a New York beauty specialist, who poses as a missing baron of the Principality of Bolognia. Dr. Budd expects to find a fortune in Bolognia, but instead gets more than his share of trouble, his only legacy being a duel with a notoriously bad man. After an immensely comical array of adventures and complications, matters finally straighten out, happily, supporting Mr. Hitchcock in the leading role are such noted stars as Billy B. Van, James J. Corbett, Montagu Love, the Fairbanks Twins and Diana Allen. "The Beauty Shop" is destined to become a screen classic. The third big feature will be "Fast and Furious," one of Al St. John's best comedies. The International News will complete the bill.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the features will be Eugene O'Brien in "Changing of the Guard," and Olive Tell and Montagu Love in "The Wrong Woman."

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The Sharrock in Their Telephonic Comedy Turn Next Week's Headliners—Sunday Program.

The Wilton Sisters will give their final appearances of the present season at the B. F. Keith theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening, and there is little doubt but that they will give pleasure to a host of audiences. The sisters are sure-fire entertainers. Mullen & Francis will be on the bill, with a lot of comedy, and May Miller & Co. will introduce novel instrumental effects. Other acts brought here for the day will include: Will Bronzer, Delmore & Moore, the Alpine Trio and Garland and Hall.

"Behind the Grand Stand," which Harry and Emma Sharrock have developed into a classic of the vaudeville stage, will be next week's head-line attraction. The Sharrocks are really high class entertainers, who give one of the snappiest of topical jokes for which they lay out a great deal of time. It is all put over in a comedy vein that is irresistible. We have had the act here in the past, and it has always been a great success. This year Harry Sharrock has a line of fun which can be duplicated by only a few variety comedians.

Leona Stephens and Len D. Hollister, who make their home in Beverly Hills, not far from Hollywood, will bring their delightful bit of comedy, singing and dancing, called "Back in Beverly Hills" to the theatre this coming week. You recall Leona Stephens—she of the sleek blonde head and of the twinkling feet. And Hollister you will remember as a grouch-comedian. The act has what is termed as "class." Eddie Donahue, singer, and John Ball, pianist, who are very well known locally, are a part of this big bill. They have graduated into the class of real entertainers and are much sought after by vaudeville managers. The boys turn over an act of many new things, and it is all very well done.

Pottery, a man of infinite variety of steps, and of a suave comedy manner will be included in the line-up of the week's acts, and Officer Fokes and Don will present an exhibition of genuine intelligence—with comedy—and the Recktors are society entertainers of the best grade. Then there's Nowlan, the "Leaky Swede," with his comedy of funmaker.

PROPER WAY TO PREPARE CHICKEN

Chicken is a light meat, suitable for warm weather. It is nutritious and easily digested. From March to September young chickens are best and cheapest.

A spring chicken is determined by the smoothness of its legs and feet, the softness of the cartilage at the end of the breastbone and the smoothness and thinness of the skin and the many pin feathers.

"Broilers" are young chickens usually weighing about 1½ pounds.

Roasted Chicken

Have chickens dressed and split by the butcher. Reserve the liver, gizzard and heart for giblet sauce.

Wash chicken through several waters and let stand one hour in cold water. Then drain and pat dry with a clean towel. Dip in melted butter, being sure that every spot is well oiled. Put in a dripping pan and bake 45 minutes in a hot oven. The oven must be very hot when the chicken is put in. If it browns too fast, reduce the heat for the last 20 minutes of baking. The chicken should be put in the pan with the flesh side up. The pan should be well oiled, but no water should be put in the bottom.

Fried Chicken

Clean and draw chicken and cut in pieces for serving. A "spring" chicken should be cut into 16 pieces; two thirds or second joint, two drumsticks, two pieces of breast, two wings, the neck and the back.

The neck and back may be fried, but there is very little meat in them. Cover these pieces with cold water and let simmer slowly until the gravy is made. Then strain the water and in gravy. The liver and gizzard should be fried. Wash pieces and trim off ragged edges of skin. Let stand an hour in cold salted water to more than cover. Drain.

Mix one cup flour with two tablespoons salt, one-half teaspoon pepper. Dip each chicken in flour mixture, being sure that each piece is well covered. Melt two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons lard in an iron frying pan. Let this become very hot. Put in chicken and brown on one side, then on the other. Reduce heat, cover

Owes His Health to "Fruit-a-Lives" The Famous Fruit Medicines

LOUIS GLOUR

45 Lakeside Ave., Marlboro, Mass.

"Four years ago, when I first learned of 'Fruit-a-Lives,' I was suffering severely with Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism. I had contracted a bad cold. My back pained all the time, hurting badly when I stooped or attempted to lift anything and my kidneys would not act.

Beginning the use of 'Fruit-a-Lives' (I had read good accounts of this famous fruit medicine in the Montreal French papers) I soon found they were the remedy I required.

In three weeks' time, I felt like a new person. However, I kept on with the treatment and was absolutely rid of every symptom of Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism."

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or from FRUIT-A-LIVES Limited, OGDENSBURG, N. Y.

Put lightly and cook slowly for an hour.

Watch closely and turn often to prevent burning. If the cover does not fit tightly enough to conserve the steam add one-quarter cup boiling water as necessary. If the chicken is a bit fat, as spring chickens often are, more butter and lard need not be added during the frying. Otherwise add one tablespoon butter and one tablespoon lard when chicken is half done. Remove chicken to a hot platter and keep hot while making the gravy.

There should be two tablespoons fat in the frying pan. Sift in two tablespoons flour, stir until brown. Add one cup chicken stock slowly, stirring constantly. Add one cup rich milk, stirring constantly. Let boil three minutes and serve in a gravy boat with the chicken.

Smothered Chicken

Prepare chicken as for frying. Roll in flour and brown quickly in butter. Place in a dripping pan, sprinkle with one teaspoon minced onion. Pour over hot milk to cover and bake an hour in a moderate oven. At the end of the first half hour cover with rings of green pepper, dot with butter and add more milk if necessary. When ready to serve the milk should be absorbed by the chicken.

Report of City Audit

other departments to close out the overdrafts.

The Water Department

The report also speaks of the method of financing the water department and makes the recommendation that the departmental records should be so arranged as to show not only the expenditures from appropriation but the cost of the several activities but the charging against this year's appropriation of $350,000 the entire deficit of the department, amounting to $48,557.65.

This recommendation already has been advanced by City Auditor Daniel E. Martin and meets with the approval of the mayor.

Condemns Overdrafts

In the matter of overdrafts the report desires to call attention to the fact that at the close of each year several of the appropriation accounts have been overdrawn and have been adjusted by a council order making transfers to close out the overdrafts; and also to the fact that some departments have passed departmental payments to the auditor's office for payment during the first month of the following year which are obligations on the prior year's appropriation. If such obligations are in excess of the appropriations against which they are chargeable, they are as much overdrafts as if the bills had been passed at the end of the year to be paid out of the year's appropriation.

"Revenue is assessed for the amounts of the appropriations which have been expended and the value of a carefully prepared budget is destroyed if transfer orders are passed at the end of the year to take care of overdrafts. These expenditures are not actual liabilities in excess of appropriations made for their department, even though the appropriations are insufficient to permit the performance of work which, in their judgment, should be done, they are nevertheless bound by the amounts appropriated and should either accept additional appropriations or curtail the work so as to bring the costs within the sums available."

Monthly Report of Bills

The report further recommends that all department receipts of money should be paid to the treasurer at least monthly and all department bills rendered should be reported to the auditor monthly and that a complete settlement and reporting of bills be made out by each department prior to the closing of the books for the fiscal year.

"Otherwise," says the report, "it is impossible for the books to show the true financial condition of the city." The report states that there was considerable difficulty in proving the outstanding accounts in the cemetery office with the records in the collector's office and it was found necessary to check the accounts for several years in order to reconcile them.

City Trust Funds

Regarding the Jonathan Tyler worthy poor fund and the Thomas NeSmith funds, the report comments and recommends as follows:

"The income of the Jonathan Tyler Worthy Poor fund for 1921 was $465.29, but payments were made on the basis of 4% on the principal of the fund, amounting to $490. As this fund has been restored and is now on deposit in savings banks, the total amount of income earned should be set up as trust fund income and paid for the purpose for which the fund was established. The city has discontinued paying interest on the Thomas NeSmith Poor Fund and the Thomas NeSmith Church Fund, as an opinion has been given that these funds were not trust funds. Both of these funds, however, are carried on the books as an obligation of the city, and therefore they should either be restored by special legislative authority so as to earn income for carrying out the terms of the bequest, or they should be returned to the heirs of the donor."

The audit was made in March and April by James Rockett, representing Edward H. Penlon, chief examiner of the division of accounts, and is the only audit of the books that will be made this year.

TRUCK BID REFUSED

The city has received a bid of $40 on a Buick truck that has been in the service of the water works department for the past five years. The bid had come from Louis H. Jason, but it has been turned down on the grounds that the machine was worth considerably more money, even though it has been five years of rather hard usage.

a bit too hard. He said that he didn't think the course was good practice.

Several Liquor Cases

The unusual number of cases, mostly liquor cases, were on the docket. As is generally the case findings of guilty were made in most instances although one man charged with illegal keeping was discharged for lack of evidence.

The case that brought the first ruling from the court was one in which Plota Pacewicz, a landlord at 18 Willow street, was charged with illegal keeping. A raid was conducted at his house on April 8 by members of the liquor squad. Officers testified that they found a still in operation on the top floor of the house but that no one was in the room at the time. The defendant, when questioned at the time of the raid by the officers, admitted that he owned the house but denied all knowledge of the still. The tenant, who occupied the tenement in question, appeared in court this morning as a government witness and said that the landlord insisted that the still be kept in operation and that he (the landlord-defendant) had full charge of it.

The tenant further testified that he and his landlord didn't get along very well together and that the only reason he occupied the house was because he had lent the landlord $200 and he was using up the loan in rent. Following the evidence the court ruled that there had been no evidence of traffic shown and discharged Pacewicz.

The case that brought out the other ruling was one in which Anastasia Dardas was charged with illegal keeping and an illegal sale. He was arrested recently by the liquor officers and two bottles of supposed moonshine taken from his person. The court found him guilty of illegal keeping and he pleaded guilty to an illegal sale. The case was continued two weeks for sentence.

Charles Connors pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal keeping and paid a fine of $100. James R. McWilliams, who was recently sentenced to the house of correction for a term of three months for receiving stolen property, but who appealed, withdrew his appeal.

Treating the Feet

To bathe the feet with alcohol is considered an unhealthy practice by the court, especially if part of the alcohol is found in a store and another portion of it concealed in a hole in the floor, in the living rooms. At least this may be the reason for the fact that the court found Mike Bekish guilty of illegal keeping and ordered him to pay a fine of $100. According to the testimony of liquor officers, they raided the Bekish store and tenement above it at 24 Lakewood avenue on May 16. Six quarts of moonshine were found, two of these bottles being found in the store, and the others in a hole in the floor of the tenement above.

Mike offered the unique defense that he didn't know anything about the alcohol. His wife mounted the rostrum and testified that she had to bathe her feet in the liquid. She even volunteered to submit to a doctor's examination to show that her feet needed alcoholic stimulation. Mike said that he didn't make any sales but that his wife handled all of the liquor. When questioned as to how the contraband was found in the store, he said that some of his customers must have brought it in the bottles. The court found Mike guilty of "first offense, $100." Was the closing chapter in the story of "the alcoholic foot bath."

Drunkens Offenders

The unusual number of drunken offenders appeared. Most of these were treated harshly by the court, who made it plain that he was becoming discouraged with the actions of certain offenders who seemed to hold probation sentences in contempt. To more than one repeater he made it plain that it was his last chance and that if the sentences would be imposed for reappearances.

One case provoked more or less laughter and occasional rapping for order several times. A true son of the soil, who still had that refreshing farm appearance in both his make-up and speech, appeared on a drunkenness complaint. He had been arrested with two other persons.

With much twirling of his hat and quite a bit of blushing, the man told the court that he was sorry for what had happened to him. The following conversation then took place between him and the court:

"Can't you get enough moonshine over in Burlington, where you come from, without coming to Lowell?"

"This is the first time I've been in this big city for 10 months."

"Well, I hope it's the last time I see you for 10 years. How long do you think it will take you to get out of Lowell?"

"Not a great deal of time, mister. I reckon you can rely on me for that all right."

"Well, you get out and stay out."

"All right, mister. I had a job over here and I came over yesterday, but I guess I got into kinda bad shape."

"I guess you did, too. I'll give you two hours to leave town and stay away from here. You may go now."

With this the case was placed on file.

YOUTH CHARGED WITH PIRACY

Molley Held at West Palm Beach in Connection With Bank Robbery

Declared to be Leader of Pirate Bands Responsible for Raids on Vessels

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., May 20.—Federal authorities have entered a charge of piracy against Sanford Molley, 18 year old youth held in jail here in connection with the robbery of the bank of Stuart at that town, near here last week, who they declare to be a leader of pirate bands responsible for numerous raids recently on the cargoes of vessels in the vicinity of the Bahamas Islands.

Request by the federal authorities that Molley be placed in their custody, was made, they said, as the result of an extensive investigation by both American and British authorities of recent raids on ships. These raids were conducted in true pirate style, and in one case said to have netted the pirates $15,000. Molley is being held here with another youth with whom he was arrested after a chase leading half way across the state following the bank robbery.

There were remarks for the welfare of the organization by President Laroque, Vice President Smith, Treasurer St. Denis and Representative Henry Achin of this city.

23 Murders in Belfast in Week

hours and dozens of others have been wounded.

These outrages have not been confined to the immediate vicinity of Belfast.

Within the last 24 hours armed raiders have laid a trail of fire from County Down through Belfast north of County Antrim, attacking police barracks, ambushing special constables, burning houses of loyalists, destroying railway lines and cutting wire communications. A wild week end of outrages was feared in Belfast today.

Within the city of Belfast the number of murders during the past week will be brought to a total of 23 as a result of today's shootings.

Murder Gangs Active

BELFAST, May 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—Reports of the number of deaths in yesterday's shooting throughout Belfast vary from five to eight, while a dozen or more persons were wounded. The damage caused by the series of incendiary fires aggregated many thousands of pounds.

Three men who were shot upon avowing themselves Protestants, died during the night.

The murder gangs were active early today. Two armed men entered the sawmills in the York street area, inquired the religion of the various workers, and shot dead a Catholic, John Connolly, apparently in reprisal for a similar shooting in the case of a Protestant yesterday.

Shanes castle, the County Antrim, home of Lord O'Neill, whose son is speaker of the Ulster house of commons, was burned today by 40 men, said to be from Tyrone. The caretaker was wounded while defending the castle. The raiders retired after setting the fire. Lord O'Neill, who is 83 years old, and Lady O'Neill, were rescued by neighbors.

Barracks Captured

DUBLIN, May 20.—Despatches from northern Ireland are to the effect that Sinn Fein forces have captured the police barracks at Glenamartinsdown, Carnlogh and Cushindall, all in County Antrim.

The garrison of the Martinsdown barracks, but up a stiff fight, and held off the raiders until its last cartridge was expended. The bank at Glenamartinsdown was captured in addition to the barracks.

Mansion Attacked

ROSCREA, Tipperary, May 20.—Fifty men attacked a mansion here this morning, and after blindfold and blindfolding the servants sprinkled oil about, set fire to the place and departed firing shots through the windows.

The servants succeeded in freeing themselves and after a long struggle extinguished the fire, saving the mansion.

NEW ENGLAND WOMEN STRONG FOR ROGERS' CITIZENSHIP BILL

Congressman Discusses Measure With Sun Correspondent—Senate Establishes Precedent by Adjourning for Circus—Washington Letter by Special Correspondent

(Special to The Sun.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20.—When the women from New England came here on their way home from the big convention in Baltimore of the League of Women Voters, they were especially active in advocating the passage through congress of the so-called Rogers citizenship bill, and did not fail to impress their senators and representatives with their earnest desire that the bill should go through with the least possible alteration, and delay.

The women from New Hampshire and other New England states also made their approval of the Rogers bill equally manifest, both at that time and by correspondence with their senators and representatives.

Mr. Rogers, speaking of the measure to The Sun correspondent, said: "The citizenship of a married woman, under our laws, has always depended on the citizenship of her husband; that is, an American woman marrying a foreigner immediately loses her citizenship and could not regain it except by being naturalized, conversely, a foreign woman marrying an American citizen, automatically acquires American citizenship despite the fact that perhaps she had never set foot on American soil or could speak a word of English. Something might be said in favor of such a law until the suffrage amendment gave full civil equality to women. After the adoption of that amendment there seems to be no adequate reason to make the citizenship of a married woman hang on that of her husband. My bill proposes to make men and women exactly equal before a court of naturalization. The bill says that an American woman will not be robbed of her citizenship by marrying a foreigner, except under certain conditions governed by her residence in this country and similarly that a foreign woman marrying an American citizen shall become automatically entitled to full franchise the moment she lands in this country. The independent citizenship of married women is clearly a step with the trend of the times."

Mr. Rogers is ranking member of the foreign affairs committee of the house, he is in very close touch with the needs of citizenship laws for both men and women, and unquestionably will exert strong influence in favor of the bill when it comes to a final vote.

Going to the Philippines

Secretary Denby and his naval associate of the class of 1891 don't propose to let Senator McMillin-McCormick dictate their actions regarding a trip to the Philippines on a government transport. In fact, there is rather a mystery why the senator from Illinois came out flat footed against the project, when it does not cost the government a penny to take along the secretary of the navy and the dozen or so others who will make the trip this month. The transport is going to the Philippines anyhow, and the guests pay their own "eats" and require no special accommodations or care. Those who will make the trip are all connected with the navy or the Marine Corps, so the junket takes on at least an official bearing. Secretary of War Weeks, a member of the class of '81 had hoped to go but finds himself unable to do so account of the pending investigation of war profiteers and in which he wants to land the attorney general all possible aid.

Adjourned to the Circus

For the first item on record the United States senate adjourned on Tuesday to let its two score or more pages have a chance to go to the big circus. And they do say that more than two score senators joined in the crowd that "faded went." The senate had been sitting 11 hours a day, during the tariff bill, and the little pages, all of the knickerbocker age, had been in constant attendance. So when Senator Edges invited the boys to go, the senate smiled and agreed to adjourn instead of continuing its night session. And the senators were not alone in their desire to see the big show. Mrs. Harding was with a party of friends and joined in a crowd of 15,000 spectators, for out here a circus draws an unlimited crowd, or perhaps one might better say a crowd limited only by tent capacity.

Sen. Walsh on Bonus

Senator David I. Walsh, speaking to a large group of service men said this week: "What the former service men will do with his bonus is a matter that ought not to be considered in giving him the bonus" and the men cheered the senator to the echo.

General Sherwood to Game

We hear much nowadays about "grandma" wearing short skirts and bobbed hair, but what about the youthful grandpa? General Sherwood of Ohio, for instance, will celebrate his 67th birthday by making a formal announcement of his candidacy for member of congress from Ohio, and a return to his old seat in the house which he had held for many years, but from which he was swept away in the landslide of 1920. Losing his election, the general of the Civil war, and a personal friend of Lincoln's, came back to Washington and, at the age of 35, entered the press gallery as correspondent for one of the Ohio newspapers. The general had been behind the scenes so many years that it is said his work fairly bristled with facts and fancies that made spicy reading. Now he is out again at 67 for the scalp of W. W. Chalmers, who defeated him in 1920.

RICHARDS

AUTOS IN COLLISION

Three automobiles were damaged in a collision which occurred last evening in Merrimack street, but fortunately no one was injured. The automobiles that figured in the mix-up were machines owned by Herbert Viator of Draught, Henry W. Barnes and Ralph H. Weaver, both of this city. It seems that the Viator machine attempted to pass an electric car and when it reached the front end of the car it was struck and thrown against the other two cars, which were parked in front of Pollard's store. The Barnes machine had its running board damaged, while the Weaver car had its rear axle sprung, left fender bent and rear tire punctured. The aviator auto had one of its front wheels badly twisted. The accident occurred at about 11 o'clock.

P. L. Hoover, first year graduate student and assistant in physics, of Mansfield, O., living at 20 Forest street, Cambridge; injuries to hand and ankle; treated at Municipal hospital.

Unknown student reported to have received first aid treatment and disappeared.

The cause of the explosion, it appeared to have been established last night, was the bursting of a tank following an experiment with liquid air undertaken by Atherton K. Dunbar, a research fellow in cryogenic engineering, a subject having to do with the science of refrigeration.

The awful impact, when a pressure of 1500 pounds to the square inch was released, wrecked the basement room in which Dunbar was at work, shattered the timbers of floors above, crashed the windows throughout the building, and hurled occupants to the floor with tremendous force.

Dunbar Disemboweled

Dunbar, martyr to the onward striving of science, was killed instantly and his body disemboweled.

William Connell, an aged workman who was separated from the room of experimentation by a flimsy partition, was felled at his carpentry bench and buried beneath a heap of rubbish swept before the blast.

Barnett F. Dodge of Newtonville, a graduate student and lecturer, though nearer to the explosion than Connell, survived by a miracle, after he had been lifted by the violence of the explosion and hurled through a basement window.

The others injured were at work in a laboratory class in physics on the floor above.

Dodge and Dunbar Met

A few minutes before the accident Dodge, the survivor, and Dunbar, who was to be the victim, had met in the room where the research fellow had spent most of the day, experimenting in the mixing of liquid oxygen and liquid nitrogen.

The experiment doubtless bore some relation to the work in which Mr. Dunbar had long been engaged, that of trying to discover how to separate most effectively certain gaseous mixtures by first liquefying the mixture, then driving off one of the gases as a vapor. This work was the outcome of research started by the United States government during the war for the separation of helium from natural gas.

Whatever the scientific purpose of the experiment, Dunbar had just completed the test when Mr. Dodge looked into his room. He was then pumping oxygen back into a cylinder. They passed the time of day.

Dunbar, in the enthusiasm of the academic mind, remarked:

"I've got a pressure of 1500 pounds to the square inch there."

Dodge then returned to the next room to undertake a similar test.

Exact Cause in Doubt

No one has yet been found who would place the exact cause of the explosion. Simply some terrific power of nature was suddenly let loose to rip and thunder through the building on its awful errand of havoc.

There was a tremendous report, "like the booming of a gun some where in the building," said George W. Thompson, head machinist, who was at work there the evening of the explosion.

There was a second shock; perhaps also a third. Memories do not agree. It was all in a moment and the 20 or more occupants of the building were stunned.

Ruin ruled where had been perfect order. Everything but the very brick walls of the room was swept into undying heaps of kindling. The heating, gas, electric and water systems were blown out of commission. A wooden partition dividing the room was blown to chips.

The entire building shuddered as if it were to be shaken from its foundations. Every window was shattered.

Investigate Explosion

The list of those injured in the explosion at the Jefferson Physical laboratory at Harvard yesterday, was brought to nine today with the addition of the names of W. T. Reidy of Winsted, Conn., and C. D. Bent of Governor Mass., both students. Reidy and Bent are at the Stillman Infirmary, the former suffering from injuries to the knee and ankle, while the latter is suffering from contusions.

State Chemist Walter R. Wedger today was examining fragments of the wrecked tank and the debris to determine, if possible, the exact cause of the explosion.

State Fire Marshal George C. Neal in a statement asserted that hereafter all laboratory experiments involving the use of highly combustible gases or explosions must be carried on in isolated buildings.

SHOEWORKERS TO GO ON STRIKE

No Word From Manufacturers of a Recession From Demands for 10 P. C. Cut

CINCINNATI, May 20.—Having received no word from the manufacturers of a recession from their demands for a 10 per cent. reduction in wages, shoeworkers in 16 Cincinnati factories were prepared to go on strike today.

Approximately 5000 men and women operatives are affected.

Three large meetings of members of the Boot & Shoe Workers' union, last night, last night were addressed by Earl MacIntyre of Rochester, N. Y., general vice-president of the International union and C. F. James, St. Paul, Minn., general executive board member. These officers explained to the workers the organization's constitutional and legal provisions, calling special attention to the question of who is entitled to strike benefits.

Officials of the Cincinnati Shoe Manufacturers' association declared they had nothing to add to their former statement that they would not be considered and the formalities leading up to the vote will be brief and to the point.

It was said today on good authority that Redmond Welch has 10 and probably 11 votes in the council, the latter number being one over the two-thirds necessary for reinstatement.

So many things might grow out of the situation as at present, constituted, that it is difficult to chronicle them all.

If Welch is not reinstated, the council, under the charter can demand that the mayor submit another nomination for the superintendent, leaving much as the 30-day life of the first nomination expired long ago.

Of course, the mayor could submit names that would not have any chance of passing the council and in the meantime Mr. MacIntyre would continue as temporary superintendent.

If the council votes to reinstate the deposed chief, the mayor could remove him again, but this is not likely, for it would mean the whole process of hearings over again, with the same result.

As to the mayor's statement, that the council's decision was really a victory for him, many people still are endeavoring to figure out "how."

The mayor says that the decision settles just the point he wanted cleared up, which is, that hold-over officers are not immune from removal and, in the same breath, he passes over the point that the opinion does not hold that temporary appointees serve as officers of administration.

He could not expect to win on every point under discussion.

Be that as it may, there is no doubt in the minds of the vast majority of people who have interested themselves in the proceedings that when the mayor and Mr. MacIntyre instituted mandamus proceedings they sought the court's interpretation of just the point that Mr. Honor now passes over with a wave of the hand.

After the time, the question of temporary appointees, ousting hold-overs was brought up during the hearings held before Justice Jenny and the full bench of the court and a great deal was made of the point, while, as we recall it, only minor importance was attached to the matter of the mayor's right to remove a hold-over.

In brief, that wasn't the issue at all, despite the fact that the mayor now contends that it was. Even the mayor's counsel, Mr. O'Donoghue, while arguing before the full bench, stated that it was admitted that the mayor's removal of Mr. Welch was illegal, for it was his contention that no removal was necessary because of fact that the office was made vacant by the charter on the fact of January.

Moreover, Mr. O'Donoghue, made much of the point that an office could be occupied and vacant at the same time.

The mayor now says that the decision gives him just the right he thought he had to hold over a hold-over while during the case, his own counsel said that such action was illegal.

Now, however, as it is settled in the mayor's mind that he has the right to remove an officer holding over from other years, will he exercise it against Martin Conley and Edward H. Foye, both of whom he has attempted to displace by means of other nominees, neither of whom has been confirmed?

MASTER PLUMBERS' CONVENTION

The annual convention of the National Association of Master Plumbers will be held June 5-7 in Detroit, Mich., and among the Lowell members will attend are Richard Welch, treasurer of the association; Dan Carroll, president of the local association; William F. Foye and Charles E. Burdett.

The Lowell delegates will leave this city May 30 and will go directly to Buffalo, N. Y., where they will attend the annual convention of the National Association of the Heating and Piping Contractors, which will be held June 2-4. Later they will journey to Detroit.

TO ABANDON PROPOSED STREET MERGER

NEW YORK, May 20.—Abandonment of the proposed merger of independent steel companies was generally forecast today as a result of the withdrawal of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. from the six-company combine.

While a statement of Thos. I. Chadbourne, counsel for the interested companies which was issued after Youngstown's withdrawal, set forth that "conferees of the other five companies are being continued to determine whether it would be advisable to consider the consolidation of some or all of them," little hope was expressed that the merger negotiations would be continued.

LOWELL NORMAL SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

Among the activities under consideration at the Normal school is the entertainment of High school pupils who are to attend the higher institution next year. An exhibition of club activities and a party by Section C have been decided on for this occasion, the date of which has not been determined.

Yesterday afternoon a brief summary of the progress of Normal school work in Pennsylvania was given at the school by C. H. Fisher, Ph.D., president of the State Normal School at Bloomsburg, Pa.

On Thursday afternoon a reading by Miss Sarah E. Lovell of the department of English was given before the Parent-Teacher association of the Lexington avenue school, consisting of poems and stories for children.

Mr. William E. Riley attended a meeting of the Merrimack Valley superintendents yesterday, while Mr. Clarence M. Weed attended another meeting of principals in Boston.

DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

The Lowell delegates to the annual convention of the Artisans' Canadian Association of Montreal, Que., which will be held in Lawrence, June 17, are as follows: Charles Normandin, Branch St. Andre; Joseph A. Plante, Branch St. Marie; Henri Bergeron, Branch St. Joseph and Jules Duchesne, Branch St. Evelyn. The convention will select a delegate from each city to attend the national convention which will be held in Montreal, next August.

THE MANDAMUS DECISION

The decision of the supreme court in the mandamus case arising from the removal of Supt. Welch of the police department by the mayor and turning upon certain misinterpretations of the city charter, is clear, logical and comprehensive.

It shows plainly that the provisions of the charter that came under controversy as applied to Welch's case, are open only to one interpretation. Although all the terms of office-holders were ended when the new charter took effect at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of the first Monday of January, the heads of departments were continued in office under the same charter provision until such time as their successors should be chosen and qualified. As head of the police department, therefore, Supt. Welch was legally in office until his successor was chosen and qualified. As the city council did not confirm the mayor's nominee for superintendent of the police department, Supt. Welch was legally in office when removed by Mayor Brown. The power of removal vested in the mayor, is held to be applicable to holdover officials as well as others for cause; but if removed, as in the case of Welch, they have the right to a hearing same as would the regularly appointed officials when so removed. The council, however, is the final arbiter after hearing the evidence adduced in support of the removal, and can confirm the removal by the mayor or reinstate the official.

There is no ground whatever for the assumption that after the charter took effect in January all the hold-over heads of departments could each be ousted by a temporary appointment made by the mayor. That delusion has been dispelled by the court decision.

The supreme court finds no ambiguity in the charter on any point raised. The language of every section bearing upon the case in hand is clear, and the meaning as obvious as anything possibly can be. It will be well in the future to conclude that the charter means just what it says rather than precisely the opposite.

SALESWOMEN'S WAGES

The minimum wage commission on Wednesday, following a public hearing at the state house, approved the finding of a wage board named to investigate wages paid female workers in retail stores, which establishes a higher minimum wage. While the power of the board is not mandatory, usually its recommendations are followed by employers.

Wednesday's decision recommends that the minimum wage for experienced employees be not less than $11 a week, as compared with the previous figure of $8.50; for learners and apprentices under 18 years of age, not less than $10 a week, as against the former rate of $6 to $7; and for all others not less than $12 a week.

Indicating its desire to be of real service and better the working conditions of women in Massachusetts, so far as possible, the commission further rules that an employee shall be deemed experienced who has been employed in the occupation one year after reaching the age of 18 years; that the rates recommended are based on full-time work, by which is meant the full number of hours per week required by employers and permitted by the state; and that an employee of less than ordinary ability may be paid less than the prescribed minimum wage, provided that a special license is obtained.

The prevailing rates went into effect in January, 1916. The new wage rulings take effect as of June 1 next.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS

Every gold star mother is to receive a medal cast at the instance of the city government as a token of appreciation of what she did for the country in giving a beloved son as one of its heroic defenders. Only those who have sustained this loss can realize what it is; but the gold star mothers, like their Spartan prototypes, instead of lamenting over their bereavement, rejoiced that their boys had distinguished themselves in the service of their country. Every medal of this kind should bear the name of the hero and the service in which he died, as this will please the mother even more than the mere mention of her own name. Moreover, it will be a strange anomaly to present a gold star mother a medal made of brass or any other inferior metal. Anyhow, we are glad that some official recognition is to be made of the gold star mothers in appreciation of the patriotic spirit with which they sent their boys forward to sacrifice their lives on the altar of patriotism that our liberties might rest secure and our flag still remain the proud emblem of the freest nation on earth.

WELLNESS AND GOODNESS

One of the health authorities in Washington makes the statement that the United States has never been so well and so good as at present. We are willing to admit the truth of the statement in reference to the public health, but as to the general goodness it would appear that there is little on which to base such a statement except a reduction in the arrests for drunkenness which proves but little. Where crime waves such as we find in New York, Chicago and some other cities are followed by waves of suicide and where highway robbery is so common all over the country, we are not prepared to believe that the country is unusually law-abiding or virtuous. It is true, that it may be difficult to judge of the morals of the people by the percentage of criminals, but yet that is the method by which the author of this statement undertakes to support it. It would be well in such investigation, however, to include the more serious crimes as well as the violations of the Volstead act, where persons are found guilty of imbibing anything stronger than half of one per cent alcohol content.

FRANK E. DUNBAR

Those who have known Frank E. Dunbar personally will deeply regret his demise. As a business and professional man, he was uniformly courteous, genial and obliging. Professionally he despised everything dishonorable, and although a corporation lawyer widely identified with corporate interests, he was never found wanting in sympathy for the plain people, many of whom he felt proud to number among his friends. The death of such a man in the prime of life is a serious loss, not only to the varied interests with which he was associated, but to his city and the commonwealth. By the Lowell bar, in which he was a leader, his loss will be keenly felt, for Mr. Dunbar was highly esteemed by all his associates in the legal profession.

JEFF DAVIS

Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederate states, was captured 57 years ago this May by Michigan cavalry, near Irwinville, Ga.

Thomas M. Hunter, one of the cavalrymen, reminiscences at his home in Spencer, Ohio.

Hunter puts the lie to the malicious myth that Davis, when captured, was trying to escape in women's clothes. Davis was too dignified and fearless for that. The story started because they caught him early in the morning, wearing a bathrobe.

Each member of the Michigan captors was awarded a bonus of $300 in 1865. But Hunter says they didn't get the money until 19 years later. It will interest veterans of the world war to know that government slowness is a chronic disease, nothing new.

AIR-FLIVVERS

Bert Acola flies his Curtiss "Wildcat" airplane 208 miles an hour. This is at Lincoln, L. I., during a "spring flying meet"—the 1922-model county fair. The speed broke the world's record by five miles. Unluckily for Acola, it was not official, so doesn't count in the records.

What interested the crowd most was the Munster, world's smallest airplane. It weighs 500 pounds, has a wing spread of 18 feet and measures only 12 feet the other way.

That is close to the universally desired flying Hiver. All that is needed now is quantity production and a device that will make the plane rise or descend perpendicularly instead of having to "take off" by gliding over a long landing field.

This missing link will be found.

BOBBED HAIR

Bobbing the hair is only a fad, and will die out next fall. Charles A. Koslay, president of the national hair dressers' association, says this in Philadelphia.

Fashion-show models, sitting nearby, shook their heads and predicted that bobbed hair is here to stay.

Twenty years ago, when women were slaves to styles, men like Koslay had the power to make or end fashions by a word. It is different today, with women no longer slaves to conventionality. Style authorities, trying to bring back the long skirt, have found this out.

Bobbed hair is sanitary, sensible and comfortable. Those three words are the regulators of modern feminine styles.

ASPHALTED STREETS

When we hear of contracts being awarded for asphalt streets, we naturally think of the heavy truck loads, none of which weigh twenty tons or more, so frequently seen on our streets. We doubt whether any street laid with asphalt will stand such traffic more than a few weeks without showing cracks and breaks. Where a street has a rather thin coating of asphalt over a solid base, the surface is soon lifted from the base and cracked like a crust or shell. If we are to have asphalt streets that will be more solid than those we have had, it is they are to withstand the traffic of motor trucks. It may be necessary in some cases to prohibit very heavy trucking over certain streets.

SUPT. WELCH'S SALARY

The question as to whether the city will have to pay Supt. Welch for the time elapsed since the removal, is now under discussion. It would appear that if the charges against him are not sustained, the council would be in duty bound to reinstate him and then he would have a legal claim for his salary while out of office. The only way, it seems, that such claim could be overcome would be to have him waive any claim he might have to pay for the time he was not in the service. Of course, under ordinary circumstances his case should have been settled in two weeks at the most, but it was held up by order of the court when the mandamus proceedings were started.

VACATION TRIPS

Passenger packets will be started again on the old Erie canal, for people who want a lazy, slow-moving vacation. When the Erie canal was opened in 1825, its boats—hailed by gliding miles that walked along the bank—were considered fast. They cut to ten days the trip between Buffalo and New York, formerly requiring six weeks by stagecoach.

A few days ago the Santa Maria, giant air cruiser, flew from Cuba to New York in 17 hours at 82 miles an hour. We move faster in modern times, but do we enjoy our trips as much? Sipping mint juleps, on the Robert E. Lee was not so bad.

MONEY

The Russian ruble is so worthless that the soviet will print 100,000,000 ruble banknotes, worth about $25 apiece. If the ruble were at its original or par value, in foreign exchange, one of these banknotes would be worth $51,500,000.

The plight of the ruble will be appreciated in Brazil, where the unit of money is the rel. When exchange is normal, 1000 rels are worth about 25 cents in American money. It takes hundreds of rels to pay car fare, to buy a glass of beer in Brazil. And this is not in depreciated money. It is the regular thing.

Rel's, however, need not tremble in their boots, for one of them still is worth about 500 rubles.

ART

European artists believe that the United States is on the verge of a great artistic awakening.

"It would develop normally with culture," says William H. Fox, director of the Brooklyn Museum. "Indications are, it is coming fast. As a reaction from the war, widespread interest in the best art works is rapidly developing. Attendance at the Metropolitan Museum of Art has doubled in the last six years."

There is ample room in this country for such an awakening without any danger of having it mistaken for a symptom of decay.

COUNTING THE PIGS

Mail carriers this month are to take a census of pigs to find out how many there are in America.

The postman will find about 57,000,000 head of swine on the farms.

Along with these are some 35,000,000 sheep, 35,000,000 horses, 5,400,000 mules, 24,000,000 milk cows and 41,000,000 other cattle.

Civilization advances, but animals still are doing an infinite service for us. Treat them kindly, remembering that in relation to animal life we are parasites.

Hoover's effort to get the coal operators to agree to limit prices so as to prevent any needless increase because of the strike, savors somewhat of one of those trade agreements forbidden by the anti-trust law. It is in the interest of the people, however, and it would be well if more such arrangements were made to protect the people against profiteers, who are always looking for a pretext to boost prices and fleece the public. Mr. Hoover's tact and foresight may prevent any such outcome of the coal strike.

The young people who visit Fort Hill park must be taught to let the flowers and shrubbery alone. For the last two weeks young vandals have been going there and helping themselves to tulips and the lilac blooms. These offenders are in the same class who think that it is all right to destroy city property, such as street signs and windows in public buildings. They must be taught that it is a serious offense to destroy city property.

If there is any place in which truth and honesty should be practiced, it is in a school. Yet strange to relate there have been many complaints of petty larceny from the high school in which the students are old enough to understand the seriousness of such offenses. The high school student who is caught lying or stealing should be severely punished.

Only a conference is needed to settle the mill strikes now in progress in this city; but the mill men are obstinate.

Those who insist on the eight-hour day may well shudder at the thought of the twelve-hour day in force in the steel industries.

The legislature would have stultified itself if it rejected the bill to increase the salary of the judges of the supreme court.

If the Lowell bootleggers take to the air, will the police department call for airplanes to chase them?

Let everybody help the Salvation Army in its modest drive for $3000, to be used in charitable work.

Thought For Today

In breathing there are two kinds of blessings, inhaling the air and exhaling it; the former is oppressive, the latter refreshing, so strangely is life mingled. Thank God when He lays a burden on us, and thank Him when He lifts it off.—Gerson.

A Word A Day

Today's word is personage. It's pronounced—pur-sun-aj, with accent on the first syllable. It means more than the mere word "person." Implying a person of note, distinction, importance. It comes from—English "person," the origin of which is uncertain, though possibly from Latin, "persona," a mask. It's used like this—"A number of influential personages are mentioned in connection with the charges of wire grafting recently made in congress."

Not If He Can Help It

Old Tom was a janitor. He really was not old, but his slow shuffle at all times had caused the nickname. A few days ago he was leaning his chin on a broom handle, listening to music from a talking machine. After a few moments he started slowly up the stairs, dragging one foot after the other. He was almost exasperated. "I inquired his employer, 'are you tired?' 'Never,' he replied with a drawl, 'and I ain't never going to get that way.'"—Indianapolis News.

Put in the Push

A very small but live boy applied to a great merchant for a job. The great man sized him up with twinkling eyes for the one situation open needed a bigger parcel or human experience, and asked what position he wanted. "A chance to grow up into a business man," he answered. "Are you more or less being depopulated by the drafts. What is your motto, my boy?" "The same as yours," was the ready answer. "What do you mean?" asked the puzzled merchant. "Why, on the one hand, 'Push!' and on the other, 'I got the job of keeper of that very door.'—Everybody's Magazine.

Unusual Folk

He strikes rocks, water spouts; he taps deserts, streams flow; he plays with verse with garden hose, he converts mirages into actualities; from sand and sage brush he conjures green fields, homes and thriving cities. In 20 years he has reclaimed 2,000,000 acres of previously arid land, now worth $355,000,000; he has given to the country 700,000 worth of crops annually; he has furnished farms to 500,000 people. He is Arthur Powell Davis, director and chief engineer of the United States reclamation service. Secretary Hoover recently offered him a better paid job, but declined, rather than abandon his latest plan—damming the Boulder canyon, impounding 15 months' flow of the Colorado river, stopping floods, developing 600,000 horsepower of electrical energy and presenting another 500,000 acres of garden to California and Arizona.

Dream Castles

The day is bleak and windy. But I do not care! For I am building dream castles Of opalescent air.

I am placing silver pinnacles Above the round towers, And planting wild anemones, And little blue star flowers.

In the sky above the castle I'll hang a crescent moon; In the garden there's a nightingale To sing a dainty tune.

The day is bleak and windy, But I do not care! For I am building dream castles Of opalescent air.

—PYRRHA, in Chicago Evening Post.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

The "Sally" drive, which got under way today, is indeed worthy of support on the part of Lowell citizens. The fact that the "army" has not aided one, individually or personally, should not, to my mind, be advanced as a reason for non-support of its great welfare work. The reason is obviously, although we naval officers chiefly religious, has the worthy motive of charity, and if charity begins at home, in this instance meaning Lowell, it is both fitting and proper that localities should generously and willingly lend a helping hand to the little band of good Samaritans.

My heart is not so much on behalf of Adm. Arnold and his cohorts, who work unceasingly for the down-and-out, always bearing in mind the war saying: "A man may be down but he's never out." It is a well known fact that if the books of the organization were opened to public inspection, they would reveal a surprising list of needy cases, attended to by the silent "nannies." It was only recently that I had occasion to call on Adm. Arnold and when I went to his headquarters, I was informed that he was downtown buying shoes for children in destitute circumstances.

Such instances as this, and there are many, should induce people to contribute to the home service fund and thus enable these good-will workers "to carry on."

"Harry H. Williams died last week in Oakland, California." Such a sentence as this one, which appeared in the newspapers last week, holds no charms, but little significance in the minds of the majority of those who read it. But when we are told that this same Harry H. Williams was credited with the authorship of such songs as "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" and "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark," the sentence conveys a deeper food for thought. These songs, among others so familiar to the older generation, have won their just reward in the appreciation of posterity and while the words and accompanying music, especially of "The Old Apple Tree" have been sung and waited to by the millions, the name of the author seemingly remained in obscurity. It has often been said that there are no songs like the old songs and after listening to the present day creations of "jazz," "blues," and syncopated tunes, I must admit my ready conversion to the theory that the old songs will never die. In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree, with its simple, true, its rhythmic and simplicity, deserves recognition in the classification of lighter American musical compositions, as it is a classic in its own sphere. What the world needs is more music of the old type and more Harry Williams, and although the author died unwept, unthanked and unnamed, his memory, through the medium of his song, will live down the ages.

ATTEMPT TO HALT PROBE

Report Movie Interests Seek to Discourage Investigation of Valentino Marriage.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 20.—The names of five witnesses, whose testimony is believed "to be of great prosecution value," were obtained today at Indio, Cal., by Los Angeles detectives who are investigating in Mexican border towns the recent marriage in Mexico of Rodolph Valentino and Winifred Hudnut, known professionally as Natchka Ruth. The district attorney is trying to determine whether Valentino committed bigamy in remarrying before his divorce from Jean Acker, a green actress, was made absolute.

Deputy District Attorney McClelland stated he had received a visit today, from representatives of "motion picture interests" who had threatened to discourage the investigation.

The district attorney's detectives reported that the five witnesses they had located at Indio would testify to the appearance of Valentino and Miss Hudnut at the Palm Springs hotel.

It has been previously stated that if sufficient evidence was obtained to prove that after the marriage in Mexico the film actor brought his bride back to California bigamy proceedings would be instituted.

NAVY MUST MAINTAIN EFFICIENCY, SAYS SIMS

NEWPORT, R. I., May 20.—The duty of the navy to maintain its efficiency in the face of reductions in personnel and equipment, was emphasized by Rear Admiral William S. Sims in his address as president to the graduating class of the Naval War college today. The military man, who realized, he said, "The depressing effect upon morale of such drastic reduction in our personnel and equipment as will preclude the carrying out of the training which our studies and experience have shown to be necessary to the maximum efficiency of the navy," deplored the apathy of the people and what appears to be the unwillingness of the congress to the possible risk of sacrifices as inevitable and as grievous as those that unpreparedness brought upon us in the great war.

"But once the final decision is made it is our most important duty to accept loyally the conditions imposed upon us by the civil authorities and to make a careful estimate of the situation with a view to maintaining such efficiency as personnel are left. It is efficient condition of instruction, training and equipment as more important than all else, to maintaining to the maximum degree the morale of the personnel."

The present state of the navy is not unique. We are but the latest of American systems of unpreparedness, the successors of those who have survived much worse conditions. When we contrast the deplorable conditions of our navy in 1890 with its present condition, discouraging as that is, we certainly have no reason for self-complacency.

"Our personnel has just shown in the late war that its morale was proof against the needless sacrifices caused by ignorance, misdecision and mismanagement in Washington. Officers now understand that what was naval efficiency is necessary to acquire the knowledge of and training in the art of war that are essential to efficiency. Insofar as concerns the future efficiency of our navy, the mental attitude of our commissioned officers is more important than any other element."

"It is the duty of each officer to make himself and those whom it is his privilege to command as efficient as possible in training and military character. This education of the entire personnel, I conceive to be the primary mission to be carried out by the navy and cheerfully in the conviction that by doing so we shall not only render out, existing forces efficient, but command the respect and confidence of the public until such time as the people themselves have come to realize that what we naval officers really have really their navy—to realize the importance of keeping it prepared for war and to understand the uselessness of a navy that is not continuously prepared."

BEAUTY

(Joseph Pennell, the artist, says there are no pretty women any more.)

Say, listen, Mr. Pennell,
Your dope on Art we prize,
But if you now, and then'll
Attempt to use your eyes
You'll see the lovely ladies
Are still among us here;
The feminine parade is More wonderful each year.

Don't let your eyes be blinded
By prejudice and bile,
Be calm and open-minded
And look around awhile
In country and in city;
And of the girls you'll say
They never were so pretty
In any other day!

Observe the dainty "butie"
And note the stately queen
And you won't say that beauty
Is very seldom seen;
The past has few, if any,
With such girls to compare;
There never were so many,
They never were so fair!

Dry Agents Hunt Moonshine Financiers

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Moonshine financiers are now being sought by the dry law enforcement agents in the south. In Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky, prohibition officials said, it has been discovered that men with money are selling up illicit stills and paying moonshiners regular wages to operate them. When the operators are caught, it was declared, they either escape jail sentences as first offenders or receive $5 a day from their employers while in prison to protect their backers.

Join the camp on the South common at 4 o'clock. After the parade and exercises at the soldiers' monument, the camp will consist of members of Post 130 to the First Universalist church, First street, where supper will be served by Admiral Farragut camp. ASSOCIATED HARVARD CLUBS MEETING

The Associated Harvard clubs, like many other good institutions, came out of the west. It had its beginning in December, 1897, at Indianapolis, when 23 graduates, at the call of George B. Leighton, '88, met in that city. It has grown in the intervening years and next month when it will hold an "old home week" in Boston and Cambridge, it is apparent that at least 5000 Harvard men will come for a day of visiting at the university—an academic day—and a day of fun.

This will be the 24th annual meeting of the Associated Harvard clubs and about 1500, to a spread large enough to feed 3000 is a jump. The growth has been normal, however, and the great interest in the coming meeting seems to be that it will be back home—at the university.

Heretofore, the greatest number of men at any meeting of the Associated Harvard clubs was about 1000, the meeting place was New York, and the year 1912. Three thousand, however, is a different story, but the Boston Harvard club committee is on the job—has been in fact for months—and at short notice could be prepared to welcome 5000 men even if they should come.

In other years and at other places, besides New York—for New York will, of course, draw a crowd at any time—the number of men at the meetings have been 400 or 500 approximately. There were 650 men at the meeting in Washington, in 1920, and upwards of 400 at the meeting in Milwaukee last year.

DRAG RIVER FOR BODY

Police Believe Wm. E. Gay Shot and Body Thrown Into the Winooski River

MONTPELIER, Vt., May 20.—No trace has been found of William E. Gay of Granville, whose bloodstained and bullet-pierced clothing was discovered yesterday in a deserted automobile near Montpelier Junction.

Police believe that Gay was shot and his body thrown into the Winooski river, but a search of the river for three miles has failed to reveal a clue to his disappearance.

Gay, who is a farmer, left his home on the morning of May 15, carrying $140 in cash, which he said he intended to deposit in a bank at Randolph.

Victor Jewett for Speaker

It is not certain that there will be a vacancy and if the vacancy occurs, a free-for-all contest will result.

Speaker H. Loring Young has decided that he will seek the republican nomination for attorney-general in the event that J. Weston Allen, the present incumbent, decides to leave that office.

Mr. Allen is understood to have decided not to seek re-election, although his mind is still open on the question of whether he should seek the governorship.

Should there be a vacancy in the office of speaker, there will be no lack of candidates, and if any one of those now contemplating it is elected, the commonwealth will be assured of capable service.

Jewett for Speaker

Foremost among the present candidates, probably is Rep. Victor E. Jewett of Lowell, who is now rounding out his 13th year of continuous service, a record which is surpassed only by that of Rep. Edward E. Harrington of Fall River.

Rep. Jewett is at present the republican "whip" of the house—that is, he is the ranking member of the committee on rules, the speaker's cabinet, and is looked upon always as the representative of the speaker on the floor.

His republican members look for guidance as to the desires of the presiding officer.

Speaker Young served as whip under former Speaker Joseph E. Warner, and won the presiding officer's place without a contest when the latter retired. Hence it has been anticipated that Jewett would follow the same course, but while he may win the place, it will not be handed to him without a real fight.

While no positive announcement of his candidacy has been made, it is assumed by his friends that Rep. John C. Jewett has been made it is aspirant for promotion. Rep. Hull is chairman of the judiciary committee, considered the most important in the house, and carrying with it what has been known as the "titular" leadership. He has been in the house since 1916.

Jewett's Friends Sore

During recent weeks Rep. Hull has been given a lot of practice as presiding officer, Speaker Young having selected him for temporary speaker on nearly every occasion when he has been obliged to be absent. This fact has caused no little resentment among Jewett's friends, who are said to feel that Young has decided to throw his strength in the event of his retirement, to Hull.

During the past week, however, there has been a lot of corridor gossip involving the name of Rep. Merle D. Graves of Springfield as a possibility, and the suggestion has taken on considerable momentum. Rep. Graves is serving out his second year in the house—a circumstance which will probably defeat him—but he has already taken a front rank among the members because of his ability in debate. He seldom addresses the house, a fact which adds to his effectiveness when he does participate in discussions.

Perhaps it should be noted that Jas. J. Myers of Cambridge, speaker in the four years beginning with 1900, laid claim to being a western-Massachusetts man. He always contended that since the line showing the then center of population passed east of his house, he was entitled to be considered as living in the western end of the state.

Important Motor Bill

After several years of agitation, indications are that the legislature is about to pass a law requiring every owner of a motor vehicle to make provision which will permit persons injured by such motor vehicle to recover damages for their injuries.

The pending bill, which has already passed the house, and will come before the senate for action on Monday, provides that before registering a motor vehicle, the owner must file with the commissioner of insurance either a policy of insurance, a bond executed by a surety company or secured by individual endorsements, or securities to the amount of $2500.

State Control Fight

The "state control" fight is still very much up in the air, being assigned for discussion in the senate Monday. At present it is a toss-up whether the bill will be defeated, or whether the senate will pass it in a form which will bear little resemblance to the present measure.

This week's vote, 18 to 17 in favor of the bill, was taken under circumstances which made it appear, not to reflect the real attitude of the senators, and no one knows just how the cast will jump Monday.

One of the amusing features of the situation is that Senator Parkhurst of Winchester, who was turned down almost unanimously, earlier in the session, on his bill for removal of the state prison from Charlestown, now appears to have jockeyed the senate into a position where they must consider the project as an amendment to the state control bill, and may be able to force acceptance of his measure if the larger bill is to pass.

does everyone else, at the earliest possible moment and I fully realize that it cannot be operated and maintained properly on air, but if money is to be appropriated for its upkeep it is going to come through proper channels, or I will not have anything to do with it.

It is under the order is before the council to appropriate this money by transferring it from the overlay surplus account. I absolutely refuse to even read it," snapped the president of the council. "It is not sound finance and the mayor knows it. I will not be taken from surplus overlay only in extraordinary or unforeseen circumstances and maintenance of the auditorium, neither is extraordinary nor unforeseen."

"If it is not legal, as the city solicitor says, to use overlay money for the extension of the city's lighting system, it is not legal to use it for the Auditorium or for the salary of the registrar of the civil employment bureau."

"If the mayor wants the council to provide money for the upkeep of this new building," continued Dr. Bagley, "he must present a proper order and I guarantee that it will pass without delay. If the money can be properly obtained through a loan, I favor it, or if it is necessary to create a supplementary budget, that too I will favor, but never will I favor it to have a part in transferring it from the overlay account."

Dr. Bagley was moved to make his statement today by the mayor's discussion of the matter in the daily paper yesterday. In which he stated that no plans would be made to open the Auditorium or to turn it over to the city until the city council appropriated money for its maintenance.

Salvation Army Drive Is On

Continued

Three weeks ago, a committee of local business men met in the chamber of commerce with Adj. Arnold and pledged their support to him and to his cause. Since that time various committees have been working quietly and have matters in hand now which lack only the final punch to put over.

None who has watched the fine results this organization has accomplished within the past year doubt but what the money is needed, and will be used to aid the needy and unfortunate. With business conditions not of the best, and a number of people unemployed, the Army has been a beacon for those seeking aid.

Lowell people dug deep into their pockets at Thanksgiving and Christmas time to aid the Salvation Army. Its drive for dinners for the poor. Lowell people were gratified at the results of these dinners. And again when the Army appealed for funds which it used to maintain its soup kitchen. Lowell people again unhesitatingly gave strings in the same generous manner that has characterized every appeal for funds.

Lowell people will again respond to this latest call. The Salvation Army operated with its war slogan, "A man may be down, but he is never out. All manner and classes of people have been taken care of by the Army. For this drive the Army has adopted the slogan of "Help us to help others."

These five words express the reason for the Army's latest appeal.

Mayor Brown has issued the following proclamation:

"The Home Service Appeal of the Salvation Army starts today, and will continue for a period of ten days. This most worthy organization is entitled to generous support from the public. In a quiet and unostentatious manner this noble organization is doing, day and night, a wonderful work for the uplift and betterment of humanity."

The Salvation Army does the work of charity that you would like to do. It instills spiritual solace and comfort, as well as physical improvement in the individual. Why not make the Salvation Army the official medium

COAL

It would be both unbecoming and unbusinesslike for us now to make any suggestion to you failing to supply that we do not believe would be to your interest to follow, and in pricing you to now take in such a portion of the coal as will be necessary to meet your early fall requirements, we are using our best judgment.

Coal may be somewhat less in price on later deliveries, and again it may not. On this point we have no knowledge to make a definite statement, but the chances for sweeping reductions in either the mine cost or the railroad tariffs are lessened as the suspension of existing cartage rates is reduced by millions of tons each month. This fact should be borne in mind by consumers as its effect on supply will be materially felt during the months of greatest demand.

If the larger business is essential to protect themselves now, and we assume they have given the matter serious thought, we certainly feel safe in advising consumers to do likewise, and without delay.

Adams, city councillor, and several other prominent citizens. All former students of the high school are eligible to membership in the association and are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

DANCERS MAKE MERRY AT THE KASINO

The Kasino was well crowded again last night, on its second evening of the season, and the dancers are fast realizing that the time for summer dance pavilions has arrived at last. The change in weather yesterday made the evening an ideal one for dancing and those in attendance enjoyed it to the utmost. Again tonight, the large hall will be open, and on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of next week as well. Saturday night has ever been a banner night at this popular dance resort and indications lead the management to believe that this will be even more noticeable this season. With the most spacious and best cared for dance floor in Lowell, extra fine music in abundant variety and many other attractive features, the famed Kasino is certain to be a drawing card during the summer season.

Michigan Has Armed Cruisers and Gunboats on Detroit River to Break Up International Rum-Running

OTTAWA, Ont., May 19.—News of Michigan's latest plans for breaking up international rum-running today elicited from Thomas L. Chubb, conservative member of parliament for North Toronto, the following question—which he declared he proposed to put to the government from the house floor: "Is the government aware that the state of Michigan is placing gunboats and armed cruisers on the Detroit river, and if so, what action does the government propose to take to protect and ensure the safety of the thousands of Canadians and the many Canadian ships lawfully using this river?"

URGES STRIKE BE CALLED OFF

CONCORD, N. H., May 19.—Formal recommendation that textile strikes in New Hampshire be called off was made S. B. Davis in a report of his recent conference with striking workers and their employers in this state. Mr. Davis further urged that all strikers be reinstated without prejudice, that the 48-hour work week be established for women and minors and that the proposed 20 per cent. wage reduction be referred to the state board of conciliation and arbitration. His decision to be retroactive. Mr. Davis said that the strike and lockout did not offer the best methods of settling industrial dispute, both parties to a controversy and the general public inevitably suffering when these weapons are employed. He expressed "regret" that in the textile industries the arbitration machinery of the state was not used before extreme measures were taken.

SALARIES OF TEACHERS

Court Says School Boards Not Restricted to City or Town Appropriations

BOSTON, May 19.—The full bench of the supreme court decided today that school committees may not independently fix teachers' salaries and are not restricted to appropriations made by town and city councils.

The court dismissed a petition filed by Mayor Edwin J. Leonard and other taxpayers of Springfield, asking that the school committee of that city be restrained from diverting money for purposes other than those specified in the city council's appropriation.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—There was a brief but heated row in the senate today over the bill to restrict as proposed in the tariff bill.

$1,500,000 BOND THEFT

Seven Postoffice Clerks

Charged With Acting in Concert Arrested in N. Y.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Seven postoffice clerks were arrested early today charged with acting in concert in the theft of $1,500,000 worth of bonds from the United States mails here last July.

The arrests revealed a mail robbery that had not hitherto been reported. It was the theft of a letter containing $10,000 in bonds, mailed from this city to Watertown, N. Y., on May 6, last.

The arrests resulted from a confession made according to postoffice inspectors by Mark Von Eschen, who was arrested in the Bronx with $39,000 of the stolen bonds in his possession on Jan. 19, and sentenced to the federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga., for five years after conviction for attempting to dispose of part of the securities.

The prisoners are Gustave Feldman, Morris Steinberg, Edward Fogel, Abraham Goldsmith, Harry Shapiro, Gustave Galles and Irving Weinstein.

BRIEF BUT IMPORTANT WIRE DESPATCHES

HAVERHILL, May 19.—City Marshal Alden W. Worcester received a telegram from Sheriff George J. Warner of Westchester county, New York, this forenoon, which stated that the body of a man found dead with a bullet wound in the chest, about seven miles north of White Plains, New York, on Tuesday, had been identified by army records as Clarence Peters, 15 Grove street, this city.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Electrical transmission of power will yet be developed to a thousand mile radius, Secretary Hoover declared today in an address made from Washington over a long distance telephone to the convention of the National Electric Light association in Atlantic City.

BRUSSELS, May 19.—(By the Associated Press)—The engagement of Prince Leopold, heir apparent to the Belgian throne, to Princess Yolande, daughter of the king and queen of Italy, will be officially proclaimed during the visit of the Italian sovereigns to Brussels, in June, it was announced today.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A jury to try the American Cotton Exchange and some of its officers on charges of bucketing cotton orders was selected today in the criminal branch of supreme court. It was alleged that eighty per cent of the orders received by the exchange from the south were never executed.

CHICAGO, May 19.—The jury in the second trial of Willie Dalton, boy bank clerk, who stole $72,000 worth of Liberty bonds, was discharged today after it had failed to agree. The vote stood 11 to 1, for conviction. It was announced.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 19.—A committee representing about 200 of the 250 striking employees of the Pawtucket Branch of B. & O. R. Co., Inc., conferred here today with officials of the company regarding a possible settlement of the walkout at the plant.

PORTLAND, Me., May 19.—Maurice W. Hawkes, operator of a one-man car on the Portland street railway, died in a hospital here this afternoon, where he had been rushed from injuries suffered when he was crushed between his own car and wrecker.

ST. LOUIS, May 19.—Oil companies have a surplus of 500,000,000 gallons of gasoline on hand, despite the increase in the price of gasoline throughout the country, according to delegates attending the convention of the American Automobile association today. It was reported that there are approximately 11,000,000 automobiles in the country, one-third of which are owned by farmers.

WAGES CUT TO REDUCE PRICE OF COAL

NEW YORK, May 19.—Wage cuts which may be enforced in the anthracite industry will consist, in part, in cheaper coal to the public operators announced today following their offer to settle with the striking miners on a basis of 21 per cent. wage reductions.

Reductions of 18 per cent. for contract men and 11.25 a day for shift workers were proposed by the operators yesterday. Although refused, they will form a basis for future negotiations, labor leaders asserted. "What we have definitely made up our minds to do is to lower the price of coal," said S. D. Warriner, spokesman for the operators. Just what reduction in hard coal prices to the consumer resulted would depend, he explained, on "the competitive market in steam sizes of anthracite—upon how much, if any, we are compelled to cut the prices of huckwheat and pea sizes, to compete with soft coal producers."

LAWRENCE STRIKERS TO MEET MONDAY

LAWRENCE, May 19.—A meeting of the employees of the Patchogue-Plymouth mill has been called for next Monday morning. Its purpose is not known, but it is understood to be in connection with the present strike situation. Recently the employees of this mill refused a compromise offer of about 1-3 per cent. Agent H. A. S. Read of that mill conferred with members of the state board of conciliation and arbitration yesterday and word was received from that board today to the effect that the general outlook in "hospital" A member of the board intimated that a statement might be issued in a few days.

JUDGE QUA SETS ASIDE VERDICT

CAMBRIDGE, May 19.—A decision setting aside the award of $22,500 to Mrs. Robert E. Dickerman of Somerville, who sued her mother-in-law, Mrs. Minnie J. Dickerman for alleged alienation of affections, was handed down today by Judge Stanley E. Qua. A new trial was ordered on the ground that the verdict of the jury was against the weight of evidence.

Lowell Storekeeper Loses $55
by Taking Worthless Ring
for Security

When P. T. Barnum made the crack "That there is one born every minute and two to catch him," he surely said something. At least that is what a merchant who keeps a store not far from Towers corner thinks after his experience yesterday, in which he was second out of 55 perfectly good American dollars.

Today the merchant admitted to the police that he had passed through a soft period in his life when he allowed the "sleekers" to hand him a worthless ring in exchange for $55. All the less ready to show for his transaction is one ring, worth "nothing" on a jeweler's say-so, about a $1 on the market, $200 in the estimation of the slicker, and a whole lot of experience.

But here is the story. Yesterday, as the merchant, with his chin clipped in his hands, and dreaming of the good old days when business was always running and the tall ones sold for five cents a throw, a rather stout, well-dressed man snatched the ring, and made a dash for the door.

Mr. Martin returned a gruff greeting, and added, "Is your brother working yet?"

Mr. Brown: "Why, no, not yet."

Mr. Martin: "Well, send him around tomorrow and I'll put him to work."

With that the pair parted and Mr. Martin left the store. Mr. Brown also made a small purchase and just as he took his change said to the storekeeper, "I suppose you know that man?"

The storekeeper replied in the negative whereupon Mr. Brown appeared shocked and said, "Why that's Martin, the contractor, he's worth a million."

Mr. Brown then turned and walked out. So far, so good, for the merchant. Two cash sales on a dull day. But the plot is just beginning to thicken. A short while later Mr. Martin returned, seemingly out a check book and pen he began scribbling, the while saying, "I would like to get this check cashed. I guess you know me. I am Martin. I have just received a parcel post package C.O.D. and haven't the ready cash to pay for it."

The merchant, looking at Martin that it was against his principles to cash checks. This didn't seem to daunt Mr. Martin. Just as he was about to pull a sparkling ring from his finger and said, "Well here, give me $55 for this. It is worth $200, and I'll take back and get it in a minute."

After the merchant made his first false step, he gave Mr. Martin the amount desired and took the ring. The ring has three stones in a row, the middle one is a diamond, the two on the sides are rubies.

After waiting about one hour, the merchant grew a bit uneasy. Finally, he decided to send for the storekeeper. He asked for an estimate on it. He almost fell to the floor when the reply came forth, that the ring was worth $200. He was so shocked that he called the police.

At the present time, the ring is carefully guarded by Capt. Thomas R. Atkinson, while two of the inspectors are out looking for a stout, well-dressed man who answers to the name of "Mr. Martin" and another, not quite so stout, whose name is unknown.

PLAN TO EXTEND
BOY SCOUT WORK

The steering committee of the coming Boy Scout effort to strengthen and extend the work of the Boy Scouts of America in Lowell met last night at the chamber of commerce and considered ways and means which it is to lay before the general committee Monday night at 8 o'clock. It was the unanimous opinion that several suggestions should be presented to the general body for its consideration and adoption. While these suggestions are not definite, they are the consensus of opinion of the committee and will probably be adopted in full, or with minor changes when the bigger meeting is held at the chamber of commerce Monday.

Invited to attend this meeting, it has been impossible to get in touch with all those who are interested or were connected with the work in the past, and the committee is at all times looking for a stout, well-dressed man who answers to the name of "Mr. Martin" and another, not quite so stout, whose name is unknown.

BOARD WILL HOLD
SUNDAY MEETING

The board of public service will meet in conference tomorrow, Sunday morning, at 10 o'clock with representatives of the Engineering Service & Construction company, relative to completing the work of reconstructing Central bridge. A representative of the company has been in Allentown, Pa., to obtain estimates of the cost of reconstructing the bridge and the surface of the bridge and these estimates will be discussed at the meeting.

CITY DEATH RATE

The city death rate declined this week, with 22 deaths reported against 23 last week and 25 in the week previous. Deaths under five years were eight, while there were seven under five years in the week previous. Reported were: Diphtheria, four; scarlet fever, four; measles, four; spinal meningitis, one; and tuberculosis, one.

DIGNITY AND GRACE

are two features befitting a monument, and all our monuments possess such characteristics. Don't you desire that kind of a memorial over the grave of your loved one? We design, carve and erect monuments to special order, at moderate cost.

Chamber of Commerce Men
and Mayor to Discuss City
Planning Board

Secretary-Manager George F. Wells and President Edward Fisher of the chamber of commerce, and Mayor George H. Brown will meet in city planning commission, No. 10, city hall, Monday morning, at 10 o'clock. It is supposed that it will serve as an agent for the carrying out of the zoning system and the building code regulations, both of which projects have been under consideration for some time.

Bearing directly upon the matter is the recent action of the superintendent of public buildings in holding up permits for two 10-foot buildings, to be used as stores in the Highlands residential section.

Under a zoning system such structures could not be erected in residential neighborhoods and it is believed that sooner or later the city will find it necessary to adopt such a plan. Monday's conference may pave the way for constructive action in the near future.

WANT MORGANS TO JOIN AD CLUB

A delegation from the Lowell Ad club attended the meeting of the Morgan club in high school annex last evening, with a proposal that the latter organization become a part of the Ad club. William H. Bolger, Frank Hildard and Edward J. Conney formed the delegation, and their proposition was taken under advisement.

The Morgan club is made up of students at the Lowell high school, and is a social organization. Classes conducted by Mr. J. J. Morgan of Boston at the high school during the winter. They chose the name in order to keep up interest in the classes among the students, and to band themselves together, as new classes next fall. As they are organized for educational purposes, it is felt that in becoming a component part of the Ad club they could act as a committee on education, as the larger club intends to interest itself in classes of various descriptions next season.

ERNEST HICKS VOLUNTEERED TO WASH THE WINDOWS FOR THE
NEW HAT TRIMMER AT THE STYLE SHOP

GOOD ADVICE
FROM SEC. DAVIS

Here is a piece of advice that should receive the serious attention of manufacturers who are trying to put wages to starvation levels:

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, speaking before the National Association of Manufacturers at its annual meeting in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, urged the manufacturers not to "make wages too far" lest they hurt their own business by reducing the workers' purchasing power, and to aid the department of labor in bringing about an "armistice" in industry.

For employers "to trim their wage scales to the needs of the hungry unemployed at their gates" would be "a tragic blunder of short-sightedness," he said. "If you will the worker with resentment now, he will pay you back in the same coin when he gets the chance." Secretary Davis pointed out that the manufacturers at the meeting made a "countless number of articles" in daily use of American workers.

"Cripple the biggest buying third of your public and what volume of your sales of clothing, food and conveniences can you hope to continue?" he asked.

The Edison cemetery, where the committee service was read by Rev. Mr. McElroy, was a scene of great interest. A large audience attended and found the lecture both instructive and interesting.

SCARCITY OF MILL HELP WHAT THE MAYOR WILL DO

Report at Strike Headquarters
That Help is Scarce in Syracuse

Orders plentiful and a scarcity of help is the situation at the strike headquarters from officials of cotton mills in Syracuse, N. Y., yesterday, and as a result 12 weavers who were formerly employed at the Hamilton mill left Lowell last evening for Syracuse, where they have been promised employment.

According to a letter received at headquarters, the cotton mills of the New York city have orders that will keep them busy day and night for some time to come. The letter also contained a demand for skilled help from this city and nine men and three women have responded to the call.

Frank Stimpson, secretary of the strike committee, stated today that the letter from the Syracuse mills did not cause a surprise in strike circles, for although the local cotton mills are practically idle, mills in other parts of the country that are producing the same line of goods that the mills here are producing are in their busy season. This, he attributes to the fact that because of the action of the local mill officials in reducing wages, the orders that should have come here have been transferred to mills that can handle them.

Mr. Stimpson stated that a great many people are leaving this city because of the conditions in the cotton mills and among those who are going are many skilled operatives, whose places will be hard to fill when the mills start up again. Some of them, he said, have been working in the textile industry of New England and they are settling on farms, while others are going to other cities, where skilled workers are in demand and it is fair to assume that once properly settled in other cities they will never return to Lowell. The mill officials are the only ones of the city and it is believed that they will stay there.

John Hanley and ten young women connected with the strike are spending the day in Pittsfield, where they are collecting funds for the local strikers. The Lowell people, who are being assisted by members of the Central Labor union of that city, are selling rosebuds on the various streets of the city and it is believed that the amount realized will be very substantial.

General Organizer Thomas J. Rangan has gone to Syracuse, N. Y., where he will spend a few days organizing the cotton mill operatives of that city under the banner of the United Textile Workers of America. He will be assisted by a number of people of this city, who will be held on the South common at 2:30 o'clock, Monday afternoon. John Hanley will preside and John Campos of Fall River will be the principal speaker. His address to be delivered in the Portuguese language. Charles E. Atkinson of the Trades and Labor council, will also speak.

Brown Says He Will Remove Holdovers if Cause is Sufficient

"Now, that the opinion written on the Lowell mandamus case by Chief Justice Rugg clearly has settled the point that the mayor may remove a holdover administrative officer for any cause he may deem sufficient, I will not hesitate to apply this power whenever and wherever I think the action of a city official warrants it," said Mayor Brown today.

The mayor did not say whether or not he had any particular office holder in mind when he made the statement, but he said emphatically that he will hold every department head responsible for the workings of his department and accountable to him for his conduct.

There immediately came to mind that Purchasing Agent Foye and Martin Cunley, superintendent of charities, have had their positions assailed on several occasions, but the mayor would not specify.

Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel of New York Yankees and Bill Piercy of Red Sox Eligible to Play Today, as Landis Grants Applications for Reinstatement

CHICAGO, May 20.—(By the Associated Press) Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel of the New York Yankees today were reinstated by Baseball Commissioner Landis.

The home run king is eligible to start his drive for 1923 slugging honors in this afternoon's game with the St. Louis Browns at New York.

The telegram from Ruth and Meusel was received at the commissioner's office about 5.30 a. m. The judge was not there but his secretary, Leslie O'Connor, had received his instructions last night and promptly sent telegrams to Ruth and Meusel reading as follows:

"Your reinstatement applications granted effective immediately."
(Signed)

"KENESAW M. LANDIS."
A third telegram was sent to Tim Lincecum and Owens reading:
"Ruth and Meusel reinstated effective immediately. Eligible for today's game."
(Signed)

"K. M. LANDIS."
The applications for reinstatement from Ruth and Meusel were identical. They read:
"I hereby respectfully apply for immediate reinstatement to enable me to play in the game here today, Saturday, May 20."

An application for reinstatement was received from Bill Piercy of the Boston Red Sox, the third of the players barred from baseball by Judge Landis for playing post-season games and he also was reinstated.

Piercy's telegram follows:
"I hereby make application for reinstatement to enable me to pitch a game today, May 20, kindly wire."

There was nothing dramatic about the reinstatement. Shortly before 9 o'clock a telephone messenger ambled down the hall to the judge's office, which was locked.

"Is this here guy Landis' office?" he asked a reporter, after squinting at the long word "Baseball" on the door.

"Test what do you want?" answered the reporter.

"Here's some telegrams from them ballplayers," said the boy, shoving them into the reporter's hands. "Sign here." The reporter handed the telegrams to Mr. O'Connor, who was ready with the replies.

Judge Landis refused to comment on his decision.

A statement to the effect that all value of a carefully prepared budget is destroyed if transfer orders are passed at the end of the year to take care of overdrafts, is the substance of a recommendation included in the report of the state audit made of the city books and accounts this year and received today by Mayor Brown from Theodore N. Widdell, director of accounts, state department of corporations and taxation.

The recommendation, which is one of several that are considered of no little importance as they relate to the methods of handling the city's bookkeeping, calls particular attention to and condemns a practice of overdrawing appropriation accounts and making adjustments by transferring moneys from

Every Man Has a Right to Have a Still in His Own House

It is up to the Officers to Bring in Evidence of Traffic

Judge Thomas J. Enright made two important rulings in district court this morning in connection with liquor cases. The first of these was that he would refuse to make findings of guilty in cases where illegal keeping was charged unless traffic could be shown by the officers. In this connection he said to Deputy Hugh Downey, "Mr. Deputy, if you want to get convictions in liquor cases you must instruct your officers to bring in evidence of traffic. I cannot find a man guilty on suspicion. A person has a perfect right to have a still in his house. Even though it may be found in operation, this does not go to prove illegal keeping." The other ruling was more of an opinion than a ruling. It was in connection with a man arrested for an illegal sale from the person. A charge of illegal keeping was also lodged against him by the arresting officers. In this connection the court said that he thought to place two charges was crowding the defendant

Special Meeting Called to Bring Mandamus Case to a Close—Decision of Chief Justice Rugg and Possibilities of Future Course of Mayor Brown High Lights of Discussion

Overshadowing all other matters when the matter of reinstating Redmond Welch to office will go to a vote? At a private conference of councilors held last night, it was decided that immediate action should be taken and, therefore, a special meeting was set at the earliest possible time.

Now that the decision has come and the opinion in full as written by Chief Justice Rugg has been published, questions by the score arise as to the possible turns the matter will take before finally settled.

Paramount stands the question: What will the city council do at its special meeting at 7 o'clock tonight, when the matter of reinstating Redmond Welch to office will go to a vote? At a private conference of councilors held last night, it was decided that immediate action should be taken and, therefore, a special meeting was set at the earliest possible time.

If the council reinstates the deposed chief, its action must be construed to mean that the mayor's charges against him are not sustained, while if reinstatement is denied him, the charges will be upheld and he is permanently out of the office of superintendent. Likewise, if he is reinstated, which virtually means found not guilty of

IRISH FACTIONS COME TO TERMS

Agreement Between Free State and Republican Factions of Dail Reached

In Accord on Forthcoming Irish Elections and Other Questions Says Belfast

BELFAST, May 20.—(By the Associated Press)—An agreement between the Free State and the republican factions of the Dail Eireann, regarding the forthcoming Irish elections and other questions, was reached this afternoon, according to advices received in Belfast this morning.

In the Dail Eireann session a motion for elections in June, subject to the agreement, was unanimously adopted, the dispatches add.

The agreement, the advices state, provides a national coalition panel for elections to the third Dail Eireann, representing both parties in the Dail in their present strength.

It provides that the candidates be nominated through the respective existing party executives, and that after the election the national executive shall consist of the president, the minister of defense and nine other ministers, five from the majority and four from the minority party.

Rumors in Dublin

DUBLIN, May 20.—(By the Associated Press)—Strong rumors were current this afternoon that an agreement had been reached between Michael Collins, head of the provisional government, and Eamon de Valera, the republican leader. The rumors began circulating when, at 3.55 o'clock this afternoon the Dail Eireann had not yet resumed its sessions.

Lowell Representative May Succeed Speaker of House B. Loring Young

Jewett is Said to be Foremost Among the Present Candidates

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, May 20.—Those visiting the legislative hall during the past week have noted that two queries have been propounded with great frequency whenever debate has lagged. One of these has been "When do we get through," and the other, "Who will be speaker of the house next year?"

The first question is not difficult to answer, for although talk of prorogation next week still lingers, astute observers are betting that the end of the present session will come June 9 or 10.

As to the second question, however, there is much difference of opinion, for

Calls on Atty. Gen. Daugherty to Resign

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The declaration that Attorney General Daugherty should resign from office and not further embarrass the administration was made in the senate today by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, in discussion of Mr. Daugherty's alleged connection with the release from the Atlanta prison of C. W. Morse, New York ship-builder.

Mr. Caraway charged that the attorney general had requested Thomas H. Reider, former Georgia attorney, to employ "the government's chief witness" in the Bosch magneto investigation as his assistant in defending the Bosch Co. He reviewed records and documents in the Morse case and exclaimed: "I say that there is only one decent thing for the attorney general to do, that is to resign and not embarrass the administration any further."

Mr. Caraway told the senate that Mr. Daugherty had been making "threats" about "getting" perpetrators of war funds and added:

"If Mr. Daugherty was joking when he said that he would get into court himself if necessary to prosecute the war grafters, I want him to make good on his threat. If he doesn't, I promise him that another document which he won't love will be printed in the Congressional Record right away."

"I'll give him a little time but he and I are threatening each other now, and I will make good my threat but he won't."

NEW FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Installation of a complete new fire alarm system was begun today in the treasury. Two fires and a false alarm in the treasury within recent weeks led to the decision to install alarm boxes on every floor and in the basement with steel covered wires leading to the office of the captain of the watch which would provide one of the most perfect fire alarm systems in the country.

Mother Kidnaps Son Now Heir To Estate Estimated at $200,000

SKETCH OF MRS. FREDERICK J. BARRETT, WHO CARRIED AWAY HER 12-YEAR-OLD SON AFTER THE CHILD'S CUSTODY WAS AWARDED TO HER DIVORCED HUSBAND. THE FATHER DIED WHILE SEARCHING FRANTICALLY FOR THE YOUNGSTER, AND BEQUEATHED HIM A $200,000 ESTATE.

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN
NEW YORK, May 18.—A fortune estimated at $200,000 goes begging while a determined woman keeps her 12-year-old son in hiding.

Will her mother love conquer her antipathy for the boy's father and everything pertaining to him? Two New York lawyers are wondering. They are the executors of the will of Col. Frederick J. Barrett, famous surgeon, whose country-wide search for his divorced wife and kidnapped son ended tragically with his death recently.

"He was hard-headed," says Andrew A. Fraser, an old friend, "a real 'he-man.' But a frail woman beat him! She kept him from winning back their boy, and the father died—heart-broken. War breaks up home."

Dr. Barrett and his family lived happily until the beginning of the war. The physician enlisted and was drafted to the base hospital at Augusta, Ga.

Mrs. Barrett went with him. But she found difficulty adjusting herself to the new conditions. In New York she had been living in luxury; in the south she had to live on the meagre salary of an army officer. The doctor's new work took him away from his family for the first time in his life. His wife began making friends of her own.

Dr. Barrett sued for divorce, then dropped the action. "He loved his son too dearly," says a friend, "to disrupt the family permanently."

"The boy was sent to a New England school. He led in athletics. His father was very happy—for a while."

"But conditions at home did not change. A new action for divorce was started—and carried to a finish. Then began a fight for possession of the boy. The father was awarded his custody."

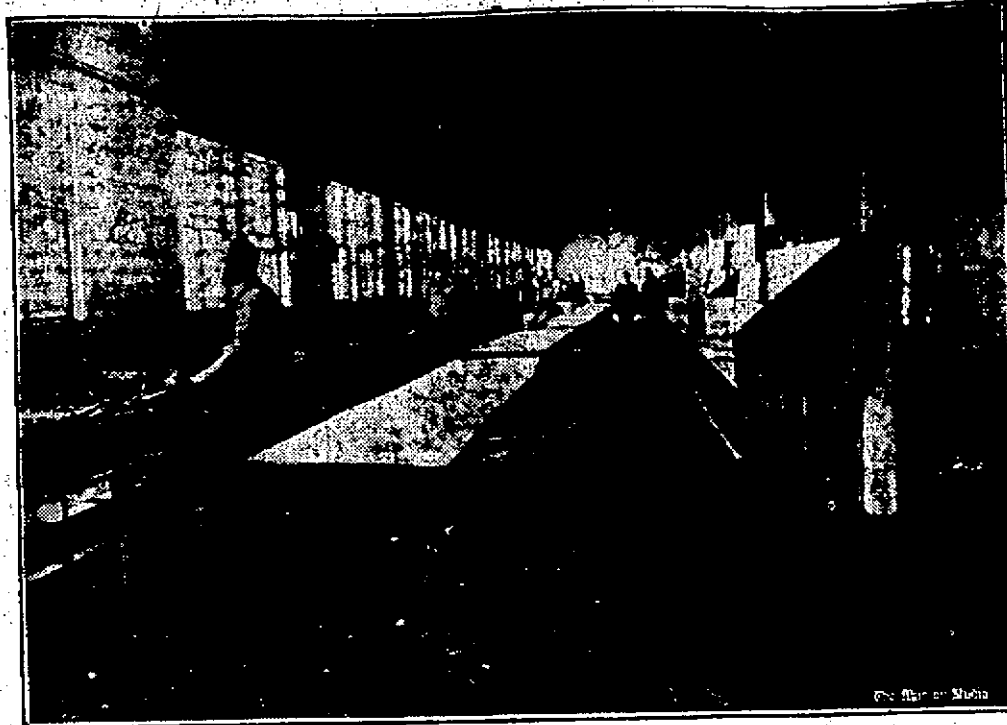

While the youngster was home for the Easter vacation in 1920, he was kidnapped on Broadway. After a long time detectives reported they had located him in Hollywood with his mother.

Before his father could get him, the lad was spirited to Arizona. Another hunt. Once more the boy was found. Mrs. Barrett loved the boy too well to give him up.

A short time later, the boy was seized on a street in Asheville and rushed away in an automobile.

In the midst of his new search the father died—bequeathed his estate of $200,000 to the youngster. The question is, will his mother let him claim it?

TASTY WAYS TO PREPARE ASPARAGUS

If you have grown tired of plain buttered or creamed asparagus try some of these recipes.

These dishes should be used for luncheon as the main dish. There is a whole lot of nourishment in them, making them too hearty for a dinner vegetable served with meat and potatoes.

Asparagus in Cream
Two bunches of asparagus, 2 cups milk, 4 eggs, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, stale bread.

Cut bread in slices two inches thick, cut in rounds with a biscuit cutter. Cut out the center of each circle, leaving a case one-half inch thick. Dip in melted butter and brown slightly in a hot oven.

Cut asparagus in inch lengths. Put in sauce pan with milk and simmer 15 minutes. Add butter and eggs well beaten, salt and pepper. Cook over hot water till sauce coats the spoon. Fill the crustades with mixture.

Dip the small pieces of bread cut from the larger rounds in melted butter and dip on the top of each crustade. Put on a buttered dripping pan and put in a hot oven for five minutes. The top should brown slightly. Serve at once.

Luncheon Asparagus
Two bunches asparagus, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 hard boiled eggs, 1 canned pineapple. Wash and scrape asparagus. Dip in small bundles and cook in boiling salted water with the heads out for 15 minutes. Put heads under water and cook 10 minutes. Drain and arrange on a hot platter. Remove strings.

Melt butter and fry crumbs to a pale straw color. Sprinkle over asparagus. Arrange slices of hard boiled eggs in a circle around asparagus, garnish with strips of pineapple and serve at once.

Asparagus au Gratin
Two small bunches asparagus or 1 large bunch, 1 cup white sauce, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, buttered crumbs, salt and pepper, few gratings nutmeg.

Boil asparagus till tender in slightly salted boiling water. Drain and remove strings from bundles. Put a layer in a well buttered baking dish. Cover with white sauce and a few gratings of nutmeg, salt and pepper. Add another layer of asparagus and white sauce with seasonings. Continue layer for layer till all is used. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and cover with grated cheese. Put in a hot oven for 15 minutes to melt the cheese and brown the crumbs.

getting the batter ready for the cone makers.

The Victory Biscuit company now employs 15 people but this force will be enlarged to 25 as soon as the hot weather makes a demand for the product.

A squad of officers, rushed to the depot and arrested the murderer. The attached letter from the Portland police department indicates the great importance of this arrest, and Capt. Petrie and the officers who assisted him are entitled to all the credit which their work has brought to this department.

The following officers who assisted Capt. Petrie, are hereby commended in orders: Sergt. James J. Kennedy, Alfred J. Cooney, Frank H. Moore, J. F. Lynch, James P. Garrity and Joseph H. Johnson.

(Signed) W. C. MacBRYNE, Superintendent of Police.

POLICE OFFICERS ARE COMMENDED

The following police officers were commended last night in orders issued by the acting superintendent: Capt. David Petrie, Sergt. James Kennedy and Officers Cooney, Moore, Lynch, Garrity and Johnson.

The order was as follows: "The following letter has been received from the chief of police of Portland, Me.:

"Supt. of Police, Lowell, Mass. Dear Sir—In behalf of the Portland police department I want to compliment you and your wonderful force for the excellent work they did in the capture of Frank Obita for this department."

"It very clearly demonstrates to me that you have a force of men who are absolutely without fear and are ready and willing at all times to take a chance of possibly sacrificing their lives because we know this man is a dangerous character and would stop at nothing in order to gain his liberty."

"In the future, if there is anything that this department from myself down can do for you people, let us know and we will go the limit."

"Again thanking you and congratulating you for good work, I am, Yours respectfully, J. S. WATTS, Chief of Police."

2. Capt. David Petrie is hereby commended for the arrest of Frank Obita, escaped murderer, a fugitive from justice, wanted by the police of Portland, Me. This man is described as a dangerous Russian Bolshevik with a very bad record, who went to Portland with the intention of killing his brother-in-law, which he succeeded in doing. Capt. Petrie was notified by the Lawrence police department that Obita might be in Lowell and that he would call his wife in Lawrence by telephone. The local telephone exchange operator was notified to watch for such a call and to notify the police station at once. When this call did come later, Capt. Petrie, with a

Mrs. Marceline Thompson, daughter of George Harvey, ambassador to England and daughter-in-law of Col. John T. Thompson, tries out the new light-weight machine gun invented by Thompson.

MRS. ALEXANDER BRADLEY'S FIVE-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER DANGEROUSLY ILL

Here is a little bit of true life put into a letter. Mrs. Alexander Bradley of Danbury, Conn., says: "After 14 long years trying different remedies I have at last found a good medicine—Dr. True's Elixir."

"I was nearly discouraged. I was giving the oldest girl something nearly every night, but now I keep a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir handy, and only give it occasionally. I have tried so many things but now as soon as I see signs of worms I give Dr. True's Elixir for quick relief."

"My son, 14 years of age, was always troubled with worms when small and 'Dr. True's' was unknown to me then. I always have it on hand now, as I have another small child. They even ask for more. Now please print this letter so other anxious mothers may know the good results which follow Dr. True's Elixir for children suffering with worms and constipation, as I cannot recommend it too highly."

Symptoms to watch: Constipation, offensive breath, swollen upper lip, deranged stomach. Occasional pains, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, short, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

A great deal of sickness comes from irregular bowels, a vital part of the body. At the first signs of constipation give Dr. True's Elixir—for it is the right kind—pleasant to take, with no gripping or distressing after-effects.

A well-known New Yorker writes: "While visiting in historic old Plymouth (Mass.), my family became acquainted with your Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. It does all you claim for it in aiding digestion and relieving insomnia and constipation. Please ship me six large size bottles, for mother is in need of it."—Win. i. Ralph.

Nearly every grown-up as well as every child needs a laxative. Keep the bowels regular by using Dr. True's Elixir. 40c—60c—$1.20.

OUT OUR WAY

Quarter Century Ago

Quarter of a century ago we had a quo warranto case brought by the attorney general to oust certain democratic officials from office in order to make way for republicans, as the following from the old Sun will indicate:

"Today the quo warranto cases of the attorney general vs. Charles H. Callahan vs. Daniel J. Donahue and vs. James H. Cahill are being tried in Boston before the full bench.

"The questions to be decided in these several cases are whether Charles H. Callahan or George I. Fowler is superior of streets, whether Daniel J. Donahue or F. W. Qua is city solicitor and whether J. H. Cahill or Frank Goring is city messenger.

"The decision of these cases will cause great relief in this city and place one official in charge where two are now claiming the right to each of the three offices mentioned.

"For Callahan will appear Hon. Thos. J. Gargan and Philip J. Farley; for Donahue Mr. Gargan and the defendant himself; for Cahill, Mr. Gargan.

"Mr. Qua is represented by Trull and Wier and he will represent Messrs. Fowler and Goring.

"The first set of officials mentioned were democrats, the others were republicans.

"The cases were heard and the decision given against the democrats, who were appointed by Mayor Courtney in virtue of the power vested in him under the amended city charter. The republicans, however, went to the legislature and had the appointing power taken from the mayor, and under the new provision republican officials were elected by the city council to supersede the democrats. The latter were ousted.

Hood Farm Sale

In the olden days the annual sale of thoroughbred horses at the Hood farm, attracted a great many horsemen and horse breeders from all over the country. From the old Sun I copy a short extract from the account of one of the sales at the Hood farm in 1897. The Hood farm was then noted for its high bred horses. In this particular sale, Mr. Edmund B. Conant was the auctioneer and there is probably no man in the country who could dilate upon the fine points of a thoroughbred horse more exquisitely than could Mr. Conant. Speaking of the sale, the old Sun said:

"As the genial Dr. Holmes said in his quaint story of how the parson's old horse won the race:

"From far and near the cracks were there, Whose heads the sporting prints declared.

"So it was at the Hood farm, dispersed and which occurred at the beautiful farm yesterday. There were present the noted veterinarian, Dr. Bailey of Portland, James Golden, driver of Ralph Wilkes, 2:06½; James Galvin, driver of Claymonts, 2:11½; J. H. May, owner of Lightning, 2:11; Bard Palmer, driver of Martha Wilkes, 2:08; Jack Stone, driver of Sylvester K, 2:13½; H. Sargent, driver of Adra Belle, 2:13½; Jack Trout of Twang, 2:19; notably, F. H. Foster, owner of Viking, 2:19½; John Sheppard, the well known roadster of Boston; Andy Welch, the celebrated hookmaker of New York; Daniel Mahan, manager of the Frank Jones aggregation of campaigners; Horace B. Shattuck, Charley Campbell, George F. Morey and Albert Montey of Lowell and a host of other knights of the ribbons and corpulent owners.

"It was an ideal day, and about 500 were there. The ladies were in evidence, too. The crowd came in hacks, busses, traps, private conveyances and on the omnipresent bikes. On the whole, the sale was a great success, and there are three reasons for it, good advertising, fashionable stock and good auctioneering.

"It was precisely 1 o'clock when Ed Conant started the ball rolling with Vasear, fast son of Vasear, the first on the list. Then Walker moved him up and down the road a few times and then let him step. And he could step in a manner that made the children of the road-side lay down their playthings. The first bid was $1000 but it quickly jumped to $1500 and then it hung until the ante was gradually raised to a limit, and Col James Galvin carried off the prize at $2100. The yearling daughter of Vasear sold for $12 and Katie Mack brought $1550 to F. G. Swift of Boston. In all, 25 fine blooded horses were sold.

Many changes have taken place at the Hood farm since 1897. Mr. Hood shifted from horse breeding to the raising of fine Jersey cattle, and in this too he had remarkable success. Some of his Jerseys became famous the country over for the record of milk and butter produced in the course of a year. In later years the farm held annual sales for Berkshire hogs, for which the purchasers came from many distant points, including parts of Canada. The recent death of Mr. Hood will still further change conditions at this famous farm.

In reference to Mr. Conant, the auctioneer, it may be said, that he has become one of the country's most famous auctioneers. He has conducted sales as far west as St. Louis and as far south as Atlanta, Ga., and wherever he goes in all his advertisements and literature issued for his various sales, he makes prominent the fact that his home office is in Lowell, Mass. Mr. Conant, in this respect, may be regarded as one of the leading boosters of Low-

Judge Lowell a Historic Figure

The following article from the old Sun relative to Judge Lowell is of no much historic interest that I feel justified in presenting it in this column in order to show the Judge's relation to the man for whom our city was named and to cite other facts of historical interest in connection with the Lowell family.

"John Lowell, ex-Judge of the U. S. circuit court, died at his home in Brookline at 4:05 this morning. The deceased was born in Boston Oct. 8, 1824, the son of John Amory and Susan Cabot Lowell. His father was a prominent Boston merchant, connected as treasurer and director with several mills in Lowell and his mother was a daughter of Francis C. Lowell after whom the city of Lowell was named.

"His paternal grandfather was a prominent lawyer and his great-grandfather, Judge John Lowell, was the first judge of the district court for the Massachusetts district appointed by President Washington on Sept. 25, 1799, and in 1801 made by President John Adams, chief judge of the circuit court, as then existing for the first circuit, established under an act of congress in 1801 and repealed in 1802.

"The first Judge Lowell was a member of the convention which framed the constitution of Massachusetts in 1780 and procured the insertion of the first article of the bill of rights for the purpose, as he declared, of 'preventing slavery from being thereafter possible in the state.'

"The deceased was educated in the private school of Daniel O. Ingraham,

a noted Boston school in its day. He graduated at Harvard in the famous class of 1844, which included among its members Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun and ex-President Hill of Harvard. He studied law in the Harvard law school, graduating from there in 1845, ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes being a classmate. Judge Lowell was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1848.

"In March, 1855, he was made Judge in the district court in the United States by President Lincoln and in 1876 was appointed by President Hayes Justice of the circuit court for the first session.

"In May, 1884, he resigned and returned to the general practice of law with offices in Boston.

"Judge Lowell married May 19, 1853, Miss Lucy B. Emerson, daughter of George B. Emerson, LL.D. They had two sons and two daughters, John, a member of the Suffolk bar and associated with his father in practice; James Arnold, a graduate of Harvard in 1884; Lucy Buckminster and Susan, who married William H. Aspinwell of Lowell.

Vampires Ready for a Come-Back on the Silver Screen

ESTELLE TAYLOR'S IDEA OF A VAMPIRE. SHE DRAWS THE DAHIA'S OLD ROLE IN "A FOOL THERE WAS"

THE EUROPEAN IDEA OF THE VAMPIRE TYPE AS PORTRAYED BY MILE. HUGABERT IN ITALIAN MOVIES

BY JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, May 18.—It is time for the style of movie drama to move into a new cycle, the sheik-craze having run its course. Changes in fashions of photodramas are usually coincident with changes of clothing styles. The sheik picture is now consigned to the discard along with the low-heeled, fuzzy-hatted rapper.

And when styles change there are always several modes that bid for favor. The 1923 film fashion catalogue calls for melodrama, sweet romances—and vampire plays.

The melodramas are too numerous to mention. Mary Pickford's new version of "Tess of the Storm Country" is typical of the new romances. Another revival marks the return of the vamp film. It is "A Fool There Was" starring Estelle Taylor.

French and Italian producers are also turning their attention to the vampire picture. And Theda Bara, the most famous vamp of them all, is coming back to the movies, but she will not appear as a vamp.

Paramount announces it pictures for fall and winter release. Attention has been called to many of them in these columns before.

Tom Mix will be starred in another George Ade story, "Back Home and Back." Betty Compson and Bert Lyell will be co-starred in "Klick In." Wallace Reid is to do "Thirty Days." Rudolph Valentino will be starred in "The Spanish Cavalier" and "The Young Rajah."

Lila Lee, James Kirkwood, Raymond Hatton and George Fawcett are to be featured in "Ebb Tide." Babe Daniels will be directed in "Notoriety" by William DeMille. Penrhyn Stanlaw will direct her in "Singed Wings."

Allan Brady is scheduled for "Missing Millions" and "Anna Ascends." Dorothy Dalton and Jack Holt will be co-starred in "On the High Seas."

Vincente Blasco Ibanez's "Enemies of Women" will be filmed. Theodore Roberts will be supported in "The Old Homestead" by Roy Barnes, George Fawcett and Cleo Ridgeway.

Mary Pickford has decided to shorten her revival of "Tess of the Storm Country" to "Tess" but she will do it in eight reels instead of five. Lloyd Hughes will have the part played by the late Harold Lockwood. Gloria Hope, David Torrence, Forrest Robinson, Jean Herscovitch, Danny Roy, Robert Russell and Mademoiselle Rodmore are other members of the cast. Filming has started.

The Movie Chatterbox
Why we use the wedding ring and what it means is to be illustrated in the next Pathe Review. What it means is no problem, but why we use it is something else again.

Yep, they still change them. "For Love or Money" Kathryn McGuire, Noah Beery, Ethel Grey Terry, Robert Cahu, George O'Hara, Herbert Standing, William Devan, Mildred June and Charlie Murray.

Anna Forest will be leading lady to George Arliss in "The Silent Voice." Effie Shannon and Edward Earle are also in the cast.

William Gish is negotiating for film rights to "Three Wise Fools." She plans to direct it and to star in it.

William Farnum will make only two pictures for the 1922-23 season. Dustin will make six.

In the last month Goldwyn has engaged as directors Marshall Neilan, Allen Houlihan, Maurice Tourneur and R. A. Walsh and signed a new contract with Rupert Hughes.

And now another film is to be made to show the world what a quiet life people lead in Hollywood at night. Jackie Coogan, Baby Peggy and Brownie should be starred.

THE STRAND THEATRE

Another Series of High-Grade Pictures For Next Week—The Attractions Speak For Themselves—Bicycle Contest

The same high-grade picture creations that have marked the more recent programs at the Strand will be shown again at Lowell's biggest and handsomest theatre during the coming week. For the first three days, beginning with the matinee on Monday, Pauline Frederick in "Two Kinds of Women" will be one feature, and the other will be "Eden and Return," with Doris May the star. For the week-end, Gladys Walton in "The Wise Kid" and Tony Mix in a new kind of film feature called "Sky-High" will be shown. The usual comedy and weekly as well as musical features will add materially to the enjoyment of both bills.

Attention is again directed to the bicycle contest being conducted at the theatre. It opened last week and will continue to July 10, at which time the winner of the contest will be awarded a handsome bicycle. Each person purchasing a ticket to either of the two matinees may be written the name and address of his or her favorite. These coupons are then placed in a box and credited to the boy whose name is written thereon. The bicycle is a dandy. If you don't believe it just get a glimpse of it in the foyer of the theatre the next time you visit the theatre. Every boy in the city will undoubtedly be anxious to win it. Patrons are entitled to a coupon with every purchase of a ticket. Ask for one and then write down the name of your favorite boy.

The high-class program of pictures—an entire change from the week-end, and five acts of vaudeville, will be shown on Sunday. Don't miss enjoying one of the best Sunday bills yet, and under conditions that are well high perfect. Cool and comfortable.

A story that bristles with thrilling incidents and glows with warmth of romance, gives Pauline Frederick a splendid vehicle for the role of a her exceptional talent at the Strand for the first part of the coming week.

"Two Kinds of Women" introduces Miss Frederick in a role that fits her snugly as the rubber cap fits the head of a whole. She is verile, efficient and wholesome type without losing a bit of the feminine charm that makes her the big favorite she is in film.

The dramatic appeal of the story is strong and will grip you from the start and hold interest to the end. Tom Santucci, Charles Clary, Eugene Pallette, Carlissa Selwynne and others are in the supporting cast.

Youth and romance have always had their part in the construction of plays for the stage and screen because youth and romance are vital elements in the life of the human race. The young men stars, is rich in these elements. Doris May as the star, faces the situation of marrying one of the young men when her father selected. She doesn't like any of them and decides to do her own picking. The way she accomplishes her end is amusing. Excellent photographic creations add to the value of the offering. The exterior views, especially, are prize-winning.

Walton appears during the last three days of the week offers a little different kind of characterization than heretofore shown by this star. She's the cash queen in a New York restaurant and in this character she rounds out some of the most entertaining bits of screen history. Her husband, David Butler, Hamilton Cooley and others are in the support.

Tom Mix, the whirlwind star, beats the speed of his own bullets in his latest picture, "Sky-High." If advance notices mean anything, what with Tony, his wonderful horse, a government airplane, and the Grand Canyon as a background, Mix is said to out-mix himself in stunts and sheer-wolf foolishness. He is seen as a government immigration officer, down in Arizona, trying to squelch a band of smugglers who are sneaking Chinese men through the desert and landing them considerably before he cleans up the situation. His outstanding stunt on this occasion is as fresh through Grand Canyon in an airplane—braving air pockets, skimming off the sides of the giant precipice and dropping from a rope into the Colo-radio river. Before that he rides Tony around the edge of the canyon.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"Bought and Paid For" Noted Stage Success, Film Feature, For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday

Another of those always entertaining Merrimack Square programs has been arranged for Sunday afternoon and evening at the popular "Bought and Paid For" film feature. The feature attractions will be "Bought and Paid For," the beautiful and talented star, in "Remorseless Love," and Bessie Barriscale, singing popular song favorite in "The Midlanders." The usual excellent surrounding program will also be carried out.

Topping off a big triple-feature bill for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be "Bought and Paid For," the noted story of married life, with Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt in the leading roles. This is another of William de Mille's splendid productions for Paramount and is a literal translation of George Broadhurst's famous stage success. In screen form it is even more vivid and impressive. The story is of a millionaire husband who marries a working girl and lavishes upon her costly gifts. For a while they are happy until the husband repeatedly comes home drunk. His wife, a woman of the sensibilities, is horrified.

At last the climax comes and when she refuses to kiss him he insults her by saying that he has bought her and paid for her and, therefore, owns her. This causes a breach. The ensuing events and the dramatic recollection make the picture highly enjoyable.

A cast which fairly sparkles with stars was assembled to enact the important roles in "Bought and Paid For." Agnes Ayres, the new Paramount star who made her stellar debut in "The Lane That Had No Turning," has long been a leading favorite. She has been starred in such productions as "Forbidden Fruit" and has supported stars in "The Love Specter" and "Much Speed." Jack Holt, who plays the role of the husband, is a full-fledged star who has recently been seen in "The Call of the North." "The Lost Boy" manoe" and other successful productions.

A revelation of the possibilities of screen comedy will be had in "The Beauty Shop," the second big feature for the first half of the week at the Merrimack Square theatre. Starring Raymond Hitchcock and an all-star cast, this Cosmopolitan-Paramount production signals the return to the screen of the famous comedian who is known throughout the United States. The story of "The Beauty Shop" is that of Dr. Arbutus Dudd, a New York beauty specialist, who poses as a blushing baron of the Franchinall of Bologna. Dr. Dudd expects to find a fortune in Bologna, but instead gets more than his share of trouble, his only legacy being a duel with a notoriously big man. After an immensely complicated array of adventures and complications, matters finally straighten out and Dr. Dudd is able to return to his leading role as a successful beauty specialist. Billy B. Van, James J. Corbett, Montagu Love, the Fairbanks Twins and Lillian Allen, "The Beauty Shop" is destined to become a screen classic.

The third big feature will be "Paul and Virginia," one of St. John's best comedies. The International News will complete the bill.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the features will be Eugene O'Brien in "Children of the Northwest" and Olive Tell and Montagu Love in "The Wrong Woman."

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The Sharrock in Their Telephoto Comedy Turn Next Week's Headlines—Sunday Program

The Wilton Sisters will give their final appearances of the present season at the B. F. Keith theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening, and there is little doubt but that they will give pleasure to a host of admirers. The sisters are sure-fire entertainers. Mullen & Francis will be on this bill, with a lot of comedy, and May Miller & Co. will introduce novel instrumental effects. Other acts brought here for the day will include: Will Bronzer, Delmore & Moore, the Alpine Trio and Garland & Hall.

"Behind the Grand Stand," which Harry and Emma Sharrock have developed into a class of the head-line attractions. The Sharrocks are really high class entertainers, who give one of the snappiest of topical acts for which they claim no claim for greatness. It is all put over in a comely vein that is irresistible. We have had the act here in the past and it has always been a prime attraction. This year Harry Sharrock has a line of fun which can be duplicated by only the best variety comedians.

Leona Stephens and Len Hollister, who make their home in Beverly Hills, not far from Hollywood, will bring their delightful bit of comedy, singing and dancing, called "Back in Beverly Hills" to the theatre this coming week. You recall Leona Stephens, who of the sleek blonde head and of the twinkling feet. And Hollister you will remember as a droll comedian. The act has what is termed a "winning" quality. Leona Stephens, singer and John Hollister, who are very well known locally, are a part of this big bill. They have graduated into the class of real entertainers, and are much sought after by vaudeville managers. The boys turn over an act of many new things, and it is all very well done.

Volson, a man of infinite variety of steps, and of a naive comedy manner will be included in the line-up of the week's acts and Officer Vokes and Don Dotson will present an exhibition of canine intelligence—with comedy—and the Recktors are society entertainers of the best grade. Then there is Paul Nowlan, the "Jesting Swede," with his comedy of funmaker.

PROPER WAY TO PREPARE CHICKEN
Chicken is a light meal, suitable for warm weather. It is nutritious and easily digested. From March to September young chickens are best and cheapest.

A spring chicken is determined by the smoothness of its legs and feet, the softness of the cartilage at the end of the breastbone and the smoothness and thinness of the skin and the many pin feathers.

"Broilers" are young chickens usually weighing about 1½ pounds.

Broiled Chicken
Have chickens dressed and split by the butcher. Reserve the liver, gizzard and heart for giblet sauce.

Wash chicken through several waters and let stand one hour in cold salted water. Drain and wipe with a clean towel. Dip in melted butter, being sure that every spot is well oiled. Put in a dripping pan and bake 45 minutes in a hot oven. The oven must be very hot when the chicken is put in. It browns too fast reduce the heat for the last 20 minutes of baking. The chicken should be put in the pan with the flesh side up. The pan should be well oiled, but no water should be put in the bottom.

Fried Chicken
Clean and draw chicken and cut in pieces for frying. A "spring" chicken should be cut into 10 pieces: two thighs or second joints, two "drumsticks," two pieces of breast, two wings, the neck and the back.

The neck and back may be fried, but there is very little meat in them. Cover these pieces with hot oil and let simmer slowly until the gravy is made. Then strain stock and use in gravy. The liver and gizzard should be fried. Wash pieces and trim off ragged edges of skin. Let stand an hour in cold salted water to more than cover. Drain.

Mix one cup flour with two teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon pepper. Dip each chicken in flour mixture, being sure that each piece is well covered. Melt two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons lard in an iron frying pan. Let this become very hot. Put in chicken and brown to a golden brown quickly, first on one side and then on the other. Reduce heat, cover pan tightly and cook slowly for an hour.

Watch closely and turn often to prevent burning. If the cover does not fit tightly enough to conserve the steam add one-quarter cup boiling water as necessary. If the chicken is a bit fat, as spring chickens often are, more butter and lard need not be added during the frying. Otherwise add one tablespoon butter and one tablespoon lard when chicken is half done. Remove chicken to a hot platter and keep hot while making the gravy.

There should be two tablespoons fat in the frying pan. Sift in two tablespoons flour. Stir until flour browns. Add one cup chicken stock slowly, stirring constantly. Add one cup rich milk, stirring constantly. Let boil three minutes and serve in a gravy boat with the chicken.

Smothered Chicken
Prepare chicken as for frying. Roll in flour and brown quickly in butter. Place in a dripping pan, sprinkle with one teaspoon minced onion. Pour over hot milk to cover and bake an hour in a moderate oven. At the end of the first half hour cover with rings of green pepper, dot with butter and add more milk if necessary. When ready to serve the milk should be absorbed by the chicken.

Report of City Audit

other departments to close out the overdrafts.

The Water Department

The report also speaks of the method of financing the water department and makes the recommendation that the departmental records should be so arranged as to show not only the expenditures from appropriation but the cost of the several activities and the charging against them. The appropriation of $350,000 for the water department, amounting to $48,857.65.

This recommendation already has been advanced by City Auditor Daniel E. Martin and meets with the approval of the mayor.

Condemns Overdrafts

In the matter of overdrafts the report recommends as follows: "I desire to call attention to the fact that at the close of each year the amount of the appropriation accounts have been overdrawn and have been adjusted by a council order making transfers to close out the overdrafts and also to the fact that some departments have passed departmental bills to the auditor's office for payment during the first month of the year, which are obligations on the prior year's appropriation. If each obligation is in excess of the appropriation against which it is made, even though the departmental bill is paid by the auditor's office in the year in which they were contracted, the amount of the appropriations which have been made, and the value of a carefully prepared budget is completely nullified by the practice of transferring orders passed at the end of the year to take care of overdrafts. Departmental officials should not incur liabilities in excess of appropriations made during the year. Even though the appropriations means are insufficient to permit the performance of work which, in their judgment, should be done, they are nevertheless bound by the amounts appropriated and should either get additional appropriations or curtail the work so as to bring the costs within the sum available."

Monthly Report of Bills

The report further recommends that all department receipts of money should be paid to the treasurer at least monthly and all departmental bills rendered should be reported to the auditor monthly and that a complete settlement and reporting of bills be made out by each department prior to the closing of the books for the fiscal year.

"Otherwise," says the report, "it is impossible for the books to show the true financial condition of the city."

The report states that there was considerable difficulty in tracing the outstanding accounts in the treasury office with the records in the collector's office and it was found necessary to check the accounts for several years in order to reconcile them.

"In the list of outstanding accounts receivable," the report continues, "there are a number of old accounts, some of them dating back for years and a special effort should be made toward the collection of these accounts, if they are collectible, if not, they should be closed."

City Trust Funds

Regarding the Jonathan Tyler worthy poor fund and the Thomas Nesmith fund, the report comments and recommends as follows:

"The income of the Jonathan Tyler Worthy Poor fund for 1921 was $465.22 but payments were made on the basis of 45 per cent of the principal of the fund, amounting to $400. An this fund has been restored and is now on deposit in savings banks, the total amount of income earned should be set up as trust fund income and paid for the purpose for which the fund was established. The city has discontinued paying interest on the Thomas Nesmith Church fund, as an opinion has been given that these funds were not actual trust funds. Both of these funds, however, are carried on the books as an obligation of the city, and therefore they should either be restored by special legislative authority so as to earn income for carrying out the terms of the bequest, or they should be returned to the heirs of the donor."

The audit was made in March and April by James Rockwell, representing Edward H. Panton, chief examiner of the division of accounts, and is the only audit of the books that will be made this year.

TRUCK HAD REJECTED

"The city has received a bid of $40 on a truck which has been in the service of the water works department for the past five years. The bid has come from Louis H. Jason, but it has been turned down on the grounds that the machine is worth considerably more money, even though it has been five years of rather hard usage."

a bit too hard. He said that he didn't think the course was good practice.

Several Liquor Cases

The unusual number of cases, mostly liquor cases, were on the docket. As is generally the case findings of guilty were made in most instances although one man charged with illegal keeping was discharged for lack of evidence.

The case that brought the first ruling from the court was one in which Plota Pacevich, a landlord at 18 Vil low street, was charged with illegal keeping. A raid was conducted at his house on April 8 by members of the liquor squad. Officers testified that they found a still in operation on the top floor of the house but that no one was in the room at the time. The defendant, when questioned at the time of the raid by the officers, admitted that he owned the house but denied all knowledge of the still. The tenant, who occupied the tenement in question, appeared in court this morning as a government witness and said that the landlord insisted that he still be kept in operation and that he (the landlord-defendant) had full charge of it.

The tenant further testified that he and his landlord didn't get along very well together and that the only reason he had lent the landlord $200 and he was using up the loan in rent. Following the evidence the court ruled that there had been no evidence of traffic shown and discharged Pacevich.

The case that brought out the other ruling was one in which Anastasia Danova was charged with illegal keeping and an illegal sale. He was arrested recently by the liquor officers and two bottles of supposed moonshine taken from his person. The court found him not guilty of illegal keeping and he pleaded guilty to an illegal sale. The case was continued two weeks for sentence.

Charles Connors pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal keeping and paid a fine of $100. James R. McWilliam, who was recently sentenced to the house of correction for a term of three months for receiving stolen property, but who appealed, withdrew his appeal.

Treating the Feet

To bathe the feet with alcohol is considered an unhealthy practice by the court, especially if part of the alcohol is found in a shoe and another portion of it concealed in a hole in the floor, in the living room. At least this may be intimated from the fact that the court found Mike Belsh guilty of illegal keeping and ordered him to pay a fine of $100. According to the testimony of liquor officers, they raided the Belsh store and tenement above it at 24 Lakeview avenue on May 19. Six quarts of moonshine were found, two of these bottles being found in the store, and the others in the floor of the tenement above.

Mike offered the unique defense that he didn't know anything about the alcohol. His wife mounted the rostrum and testified that she had to bathe her feet in the liquid. She even volunteered to submit to a doctor's examination to show that her feet needed alcoholic stimulation. Mike said that he didn't make any sales but that his wife handled all of the liquor. When questioned as to how the contraband was found in the store, she testified that some of his customers must have brought it in in bottles. The sweet sounding words of "first offense, $100" was the closing chapter in the story of the alcoholic foot baths.

Drunken Offenders

The unusual number of drunken offenders appeared. Most of these were treated leniently by the court, who made it plain that he was becoming discouraged with the actions of certain offenders who seemed to hold probation sentences in contempt. To more than one repeater he made it plain that it was his last chance and that direct sentences would be imposed for re-appearance.

One case provoked more or less laughter and occasional rapping for order several times. A true son of the soil, who still had that refreshing farm appearance in both his make-up and speech, appeared on a drunkenness complaint. He had been arrested with two other persons.

With much twirling of his hat and quite a bit of blushing, the man told the court that he was sorry for what had happened to him. The following conversation then took place between him and the court:

"Can't you get enough moonshine over in Burlington where you come from, without coming to Lowell?"

"This is the first time I've been in this big city for 15 months."

"Well, I hope it's the last time. I see you for 15 years. How long do you think it will take you to get out of Lowell?"

"Not a great deal of time, mister, I reckon you can get out for me for that all right."

"Well, you get out and stay out."

"All right, mister. I had a job over here and I came over yesterday, but I guess I got into kinda bad shape."

"I guess you did, too. I'll give you two hours to leave town and stay away from here. You may go now."

With this the case was placed on file.

PRINCESS LODGE ANNIVERSARY

Molley Held at West Palm Beach in Connection With Bank Robbery

Declared to be Leader of Pirate Bands Responsible for Raids on Vessels

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., May 20.—Federal authorities have entered a charge of piracy against Sanford Molley, 18 year old youth held in jail here in connection with the robbery of the bank of Stuart at that town, near here last week, who they declare to be a leader of pirate bands responsible for numerous raids recently on the cargoes of vessels in the vicinity of the Bahamas Islands.

Request by the federal authorities that Molley be placed in their custody, was made, they said, as the result of an extensive investigation by both American and British authorities of recent raids on ships. These raids were conducted in true pirate style and one case said to have netted the pirates $15,000. Molley is being held here with another youth with whom he was arrested after a chase leading half way across the state following the bank robbery.

FRENCH-AMERICAN REPUBLICAN CLUB

The annual meeting of the members of the French-American Republican club of Massachusetts was held in Boston Thursday and in attendance were several Lowell men. The meeting was presided over by President Ernest Laroque of Fall River and a feature of the meeting was the election of officers, which resulted as follows: Ernest Laroque, Fall River, president; Omar J. Smith, Lowell, vice president; J. A. St. Denis, Fall River, treasurer. The president was authorized to appoint a secretary and the members of the board of directors, which will consist of two members from each city in the commonwealth. There were remarks for the welfare of the organization by President Laroque, Vice President Smith, Treasurer St. Denis and Representative Henry Achin of this city.

23 Murders in Belfast in Week

hours and dozens of others have been wounded.

These outrages have not been confined to the immediate vicinity of Belfast.

Within the last 24 hours armed raiders have laid a trail of fire from County Down through Belfast north of County Antrim, attacking police barracks, ambushing special constables, burning houses of loyalists, destroying railway lines and cutting wire communications. A wild week end of outrages was feared in Belfast today.

Within the city of Belfast the number of murders during the past week will be brought to a total of 23 as a result of today's shootings.

Murder Gangs Active

BELFAST, May 20. (By the Associated Press.)—Reports of the number of deaths in yesterday's shootings throughout Belfast vary from five to eight, while a dozen or more persons were wounded. The damage caused by the series of incendiary fires aggregated many thousands of pounds.

Three men who were shot upon avowing themselves Protestants, died during the night.

The murder gangs were active early today. Two armed men entered the sawmills in the York street area, inquired the religion of the various workers, and shot dead a Catholic, John Connolly, apparently in reprisal for a similar shooting in the case of a Protestant yesterday.

Shamus castley, the County Antrim, home of Lord O'Neill, whose son is speaker of the Ulster house of commons, was burned today by 40 men, said to be from Tyrone. The caretaker was wounded while defending the castle. The raiders retired after setting the fire. Lord O'Neill, who is 83 years old, and Lady O'Neill, were rescued by neighbors.

Barracks Captured

DUBLIN, May 20.—Despatches from northern Ireland are to the effect that Sinn Fein forces have captured the police barracks at Glenarm, Martinsdown, Carnlough and Cushinduff, all in County Antrim.

The garrison of the Martinsdown barracks, put up a stiff fight, and held out the raiders until its last cartridge was expended. The bank at Glenarm was captured in addition to the barracks.

Mansion Attacked

ROSCRE, Tipperary, May 20.—Fifty men attacked a mansion here this morning, and after binding and blinding the servants sprinkled oil about, set fire to the place and departed firing shots through the windows.

The servants succeeded in freeing themselves and after a long struggle extinguished the fire, saving the mansion.

NEW ENGLAND WOMEN STRONG FOR ROGERS' CITIZENSHIP BILL

Congressman Discusses Measure With Sun Correspondent—Senate Establishes Precedent by Adjourning for Circus—Washington Letter by Special Correspondent

(Special to The Sun.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20.—When the women from New England came here on their way home from the big convention in Baltimore of the League of Women Voters, they were especially active in advocating the passage through congress of the so-called Rogers citizenship bill, and did not fail to impress their senators and representatives with their earnest desire that the bill should go through with the least possible alteration and delay.

The women from New Hampshire, and other New England states also made their approval of the Rogers bill equally manifest, both at that time and by correspondence with their senators and representatives.

Mr. Rogers, speaking of the measure to The Sun correspondent, said: "The citizenship of a married woman, under our laws, has always depended on the citizenship of her husband; that is, an American woman marrying a foreigner immediately lost her citizenship and could not regain it except by being naturalized. Conversely a foreign woman marrying an American citizen, automatically acquired American citizenship despite the fact that perhaps she had never set foot on American soil or could speak a word of English. Something might be said in favor of such a law until the suffrage amendment gave full civil equality to women. After the adoption of that amendment there seems to be no adequate reason to make the citizenship of a married woman hang on that of her husband. My bill proposes to make men and women equal in the citizenship of a married woman. The bill says that an American woman will not be robbed of her citizenship by marrying a foreigner, except under certain conditions governed by her residence in this country and similarly that a foreign woman marrying an American citizen shall become automatically entitled to full franchise the moment she lands in this country. The independent citizenship of married women is clearly a step with the trend of the times."

As Mr. Rogers is ranking member of the foreign affairs committee of the house, he is in very close touch with the needs of citizenship laws for both men and women, and unquestionably will exert strong influence in favor of the bill when it comes to a final vote.

Sen. Walsh on Bonus

Senator David I. Walsh, speaking to a large group of service men said this week: "What the former service men will do with his bonus is a matter that ought not to be considered in giving him the bonus." and the men cheered the senator to the echo.

General Sherwood in Game

We hear much nowadays about "Grandma" wearing short skirts and bobbed hair, but what about the vote? General Sherwood, of Ohio, for instance, will celebrate his 87th birthday by making a formal announcement of his candidacy for member of congress from Ohio, and a return to his old seat in the house which he had held for many terms but from which he was swept away in the landslide of 1920. Losing his election, the general of the Civil war, and a personal friend of Lincoln's, came back to Washington and, at the age of 55, entered the press gallery as correspondent for one of the Ohio newspapers. The general had been behind the scenes so many years that it is said his work fairly bristled with facts and fancies that made spicy reading. Now he is out again at 87 for the scalp of W. V. Chalmers, who defeated him in 1920.

ACTS IN COLLISION

Three automobiles were damaged in a collision which occurred last evening in Merrimack street, but fortunately no one was injured. The automobiles that figured in the mix-up were machines owned by Herbert Victor of Draught, Henry W. Barnes and Alvin H. Weaver, both of this city. It seems that the Victor machine attempted to pass an electric car and when it reached the front end of the car, it was struck and thrown against the other two cars, which were parked in front of Pollard's store. The Barnes machine had its running board damaged while the other car had its rear axle sprung, left fender bent and rear tire punctured. The aviator auto had one of its front wheels badly twisted. The accident occurred at about 11 o'clock.

EXPLOSION KILLS TWO AT HARVARD

Liquid Air in College Laboratory Blows up and Nearly Wrecks Building

A. K. Dunbar, Doing Experimental Work, Blown to Bits When Tank Exploded

BOSTON, May 20.—Two men were killed and eight injured in a terrific explosion yesterday afternoon in the basement of the Jefferson physical laboratory, Harvard University, Cambridge.

The dead: ATHERTON KINSLEY DUNBAR, 47, of 21 Chauncy street, Cambridge. Fellow for research in Cryogenic Engineering.

WILLIAM CONNELL, aged 58, of 55 Ely street, Cambridge, a carpenter employed by the college.

The injured: Paul A. Harvey, first year graduate student, of Rathdrum, Ind., living at 67 Dana Chambers, Cambridge; shaken on possible internal injuries; at Cambridge hospital.

Barnett F. Dodge, first year graduate student, of 165 Harvard street, Cambridge; multiple cuts and bruises; at Cambridge hospital.

Eugene H. Solow, 26, of 20-A Wister street, Salem, living at 41 Persis Smith Hall, Cambridge; compound fracture of right lower leg; operated on, condition good; at Cambridge hospital.

Henry Reiff, 25, of New York City, living at 41 Persis Smith Hall, Cambridge; dislocation and probable fracture of ankle; at Stillman infirmary.

David Cohan, of 36 Edgewood street, Roxbury; cuts about face; at Stillman infirmary.

P. L. Norton, 25, of 120 Dayswater road, Orient Heights; fracture of left thigh; treated at Cambridge Municipal hospital and removed to Stillman infirmary.

P. L. Hoover, first year graduate student and assistant in physics, of Mansfield, O., living at 20 Forest street, Cambridge; injuries to hand and ankle; treated at Municipal hospital.

Unknown student reported to have received first aid treatment and disappeared.

The cause of the explosion, it appeared to have been established last night, was the bursting of a tank following an experiment with liquid air undertaken by Atherton K. Dunbar, a research fellow in cryogenic engineering, a subject having to do with the science of refrigeration.

The awful impact, when a pressure of 1500 pounds to the square inch was released, wrecked the basement room in which Dunbar was at work, shattered the timbers of floors above, crashed the windows throughout the building, and in neighboring college halls, and hurled occupants to the floor with tremendous force.

Dunbar, martyr to the onward striving of science, was killed instantly and his body dismembered. William Connell, an aged workman who was separated from the room of experimentation by a flimsy partition, was felled at his carpentry bench and buried beneath a heap of rubbish swept before the blast.

Barnett F. Dodge of Newtonville, a graduate student and lecturer, though nearer to the explosion than Connell, survived by a miracle, after he had been lifted by the violence of the explosion and hurled through a basement window.

The others injured were at work in a laboratory class in physics on the floor above.

Dodge and Dunbar Met

A few minutes before the accident Dodge, the survivor, and Dunbar, who was to be the victim, had met in the room where the research fellow had spent most of the day experimenting in the mixing of liquid oxygen and liquid nitrogen.

The experiment doubtless bore some relation to the work in which Mr. Dunbar had long been engaged, that of trying to discover how to separate most effectively certain gaseous mixtures by first liquefying the mixture, then driving off one of the gases as a vapor. This work was the outcome of research started by the United States government during the war for the separation of helium from natural gas.

Whatever the scientific purpose of the experiment, Dunbar had just completed the test when Mr. Dodge looked into his room. He was then pumping oxygen back into a cylinder. They passed the time of day.

Dunbar, in the enthusiasm of the academic mind, remarked: "I've got a pressure of 1500 pounds to the square inch there."

Dodge then returned to the next room to undertake a similar test.

Exact Cause in Doubt

No one has yet been found who would place the exact cause of the explosion. Simply some terrific power of nature was suddenly let loose to rip and thunder through the building on its awful errand of havoc.

There was a tremendous report, "like the booming of a gun somewhere in the building," said George W. Thompson, head machinist, who was at work in the eastern end.

Perhaps there was a second shock, perhaps also a third. Memories do not agree. It was all in a moment and the 20 or more occupants of the building were stunned.

Ruin ruled where had been perfect order. Everything but the very brick walls of the room was swept into untidy heaps of kindling. The heating, gas, electric and water systems were blown out of commission. A wooden partition dividing the room was blown to chips.

The entire building shuddered as if it were to be shaken from its foundations. Every window was shattered.

Investigate Explosion

The list of those injured in the explosion at the Jefferson Physics laboratory at Harvard yesterday, was brought to mine today with the addition of the names of W. T. Reidy of Winsted, Conn., and C. D. Beldy of Gardner, Mass., both students, Reidy and Beldy are at the Stillman infirmary, the former suffering from injuries to the knee and ankle, while the latter is suffering from contusions.

State Chemist Walter E. Wedger today was examining fragments of the wrecked tank and the debris to determine, if possible, the exact cause of the explosion.

State Fire Marshal George C. Neal in a statement asserted that hereafter all laboratory experiments involving the use of highly combustible gases or explosions must be carried on in isolated buildings.

SHOEWORKERS TO GO ON STRIKE

Employees of 16 Cincinnati Factories Prepared to Quit Work Today

No Word From Manufacturers of a Recession From Demands for 10 P. C. Cut

CINCINNATI, May 20.—Having received no word from the manufacturers of a recession from their demands for a 10 per cent. reduction in wages, shoeworkers in 16 Cincinnati factories were prepared to go on strike today.

Approximately 5000 men and women employees are affected.

Three large meetings of members of the Boot & Shoe Workers' union, last night, until late last night, were addressed by C. A. Mathews, of Rochester, N. Y., general vice president of the International union and C. F. James, St. Paul, Minn., general executive board member. These officers explained to the workers the organization's constitutional and legal strike procedure, calling special attention to the question of who is entitled to strike benefits.

Officials of the Cincinnati Shoe Manufacturers' association declared they had nothing to add to their former statement in which they said the proposed cut in wages was to enable the employer to meet competition in other markets, and expressing the belief that they were "entitled to this."

"If our former employees refuse to help us meet this competition, so as to bring business here, we shall have to remain quiet or get other help," said W. Tatem, secretary of the association.

DRY CHIEF GRATIFIED

Declares Clubs Throughout Country Lending Aid in Enforcing Dry Law.

BALTIMORE, May 20.—In an address before the Baltimore city club today, Prohibition Commissioner Irvine, expressed gratification that Commercial clubs and similar organizations throughout the country are lending constructive aid in enforcement of the 18th amendment. He cited instances of clubs assisting in the enforcement of the law, and said that the national prohibition party is to be congratulated on the spirit such organizations are taking.

"It is most helpful and encouraging," he said. "It is true patriotism, because the 18th amendment is essentially American in its purpose. Its aim is to develop the highest type of American character and manhood. This law is essentially American not alone in its purpose, but in its outlook. It has rather ranged the great forces of our government squarely on one side of a great question and I am pleased to say that the real forces of Americanism are lined up on the right side of the question of law enforcement."

"Facts which none deny," said the commissioner, "are that the gifted, open saloon is a thing of the past, and even the prohibition agent it is gone forever; hotels which before prohibition feared ruin, are now co-operating in enforcement, and many prominent managers declare they do not want the barroom back."

"The spirit of co-operation on the part of all officials, federal, state and municipal, the country over, coupled with severe sentences in the courts is further convincing proof of enforcement," continued the commissioner. "And another striking proof is the changed attitude of the editors and cartoonists who, as everybody knows, reflect public opinion and are a true index of current events."

BUILT UP HER SYSTEM

"I was tired, run down and lacking in strength," says Mrs. Mabel Parmenter, of No. 215 Lowell street, Manchester, N. H. "I had headaches a great deal and was as tired in the morning as when I went to bed. I was losing vitality all the time and felt that my system needed something that food did not supply."

Some years ago when I was teaching school I had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with benefit and I decided to try them again. Before the first box was used I knew that I was being helped. Soon that tired feeling was all gone. I felt brighter and could do my housework without tiring. I know that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a fine tonic to build up the system."

Council to Vote on Reinstatement Tonight

charges preferred, Mr. Welch would have a claim for salary from the date of his removal to the date of reinstatement, while if he is not reinstated, he cannot present such a claim.

While this question of salary seems to have caused endless debate, it appears to be an open and shut proposition. The decision written by Chief Justice Rugg states that the "removal" (of Welch) was within the power of the mayor as set forth in sections 35, part 1, and 43, part 2, of the charter, and says further in substance that holders of office are not exempt from removal.

Tonight's meeting of the council should not last for more than 10 or 15 minutes. No other matter will be considered and the formalities leading up to the vote will be brief and to the point.

It was said today on good authority that Raymond Welch has 10 and probably 11 votes in the council, the latter number being one over the two-thirds necessary for reinstatement.

So many things might grow out of the situation as it presents, that it is difficult to chronicle them all.

If Welch is not reinstated, the council, under the charter can demand that the mayor submit another nomination for the superintendency, instead of the present one. The first nomination expired long ago. Of course, the mayor could submit names that would not have any chance of passing the council and in the meantime Mr. MacBrayne would continue as temporary superintendent.

As to the council's decision, the mayor could reverse it, but this is not likely, for it would mean the whole process of hearings over again, with the same result, for it is not probable that the council would reverse its decision.

As to the mayor's statement, that the council's decision was really a victory for him, many people still are endeavoring to figure out "how."

The mayor says that the decision settles just what point he wanted colored up, which is, that hold-over officers are not immune from removal and, in the same breath, he passes over the point that the opinion does not hold that temporary appointees serve as officers of administration, but as officers of the council, and could not expect to win on every point under discussion.

Be that as it may, there is no doubt in the minds of the vast majority of people who have interested themselves in the proceedings, that the mayor and Mr. MacBrayne instituted mandamus proceedings they sought the court's interpretation of just the point that His Honor now passes over with a wave of the hand.

Time after time, the question of temporary appointees ousting hold-over officers was brought up during the hearings held before Justice Jenay and the full bench of the court and a great deal was made of the point, while, as we recall it, only minor importance was attached to the question of the mayor's right to remove a hold-over.

In brief, that wasn't the issue at all, despite the fact that the mayor now contends that it was. Even the mayor's counsel, Mr. O'Donoghue, while arguing before the full bench stated that it was admitted that the mayor's removal of Mr. Welch was illegal, for it was his contention that no removal was necessary because of fact that the office was made vacant by the charter on the first of January.

Moreover, Mr. O'Donoghue made much of the point that an office could be accepted and vacant at the same time.

The mayor now says that the decision gives him just the right he thought he had—to remove a hold-over while during the case, his own counsel said that such action was illegal.

Now, however, as it is settled in the mayor's mind that he has the right to remove an officer holding over from other years, will he exercise it against Martin Conley and Edward H. Foye, both of whom he has attempted to displace by means of other nominees, neither of whom has been confirmed?

MASTER PLUMBERS' CONVENTION

The annual convention of the National Association of Master Plumbers will be held June 6-7-8 in Detroit, Mich., and among the Lowell men who will attend are Richard Welch, treasurer of the association; Dan Carroll, president of the local association; William Carroll and Charles E. Thorpe.

The Lowell delegates will leave this city May 20 and will go directly to Buffalo, N. Y., where they will attend the annual convention of the National Association of the Heating and Piping Contractors, which will be held June 2 and 4. Later they will journey to Detroit.

COUNTERPOISE USED IN PLACE OF GROUND

Director, Radio Institute of America

The counterpoise of artificial ground is a useful addition to a radio receiving station and is simple in its construction.

Don't try to use it with a crystal receiver unless near the transmitting station.

But with a vacuum tube detector and amplifying set, the counterpoise lends sharpness in tuning and greatly eliminates interference, although it cuts down the strength of the incoming signals a little.

In using a counterpoise, no ground connection is made to the receiving station and the counterpoise antenna takes its place.

On aircraft and in places where the ground has poor conductivity, this counterpoise antenna must be used. This is merely another antenna supported above the earth and insulated from it. The station apparatus is connected to the regular antenna and the counterpoise, instead of to the regular antenna and earth.

Use on Airplanes

On an airplane the counterpoise is furnished by the metal wires of the framework, the engine, and metalized wings. The antenna may consist of a long wire which trails behind the plane when in flight often behind the counterpoise. But the antenna is not different from the ordinary antenna and counterpoise systems.

Where an outdoor antenna is used in the country, the counterpoise should be located directly under the aerial. It should be strong on small wooden poles arranged so that the wire does not touch the ground. The wire should be of the same kind as that used in the aerial.

Each Case Individual

To determine the amount of wire and length of the counterpoise, each operator will have to experiment with his own problem, inasmuch as it all depends upon the size, length and number of wires in the aerial.

Be sure to keep the lead-in wire from the aerial and the counterpoise well apart to do away with losses caused by induction.

In the city where the aerial is placed on top of an apartment house, it will probably be impossible to erect a counterpoise.

If at all possible, however, every transmitting station should use this counterpoise, for it increases radiation and transmitting distance.

The incoming radio waves are led to the grid, where they serve to control the flow of electrons from the filament.

Radiographs

Counterpoise Used in Tourists on Summer Trips May Take City Pleasures With Them—By Radio

Motorists who go on summer touring trips may take the pleasures of the city with them—by radio.

Radio, with its power to travel everywhere, will make it possible for motorists to broadcast from the larger cities to be heard in the open country. While the motorist is driving along the highway he can "tune in" and listen to the program sent out from the city.

Flashing trips will not be without their radio parties, and camping grounds for motor tourists will be popular centers for such entertainments.

All that is needed is an aerial along the top of the automobile and a receiving set behind the front seat. While the car is moving the same radio program can be heard without the necessity of changing the instruments as the automobile advances.

Even detours are provided in this system. Motorists are warned of such turns before they reach these points. Adoption of this system depends on action of the various localities. The instrument has already been tried out, and found practicable. But it needs the co-operation of state authorities who may line the roads with the wires needed to carry the signals.

Radio also is going to help motorists along the right roads to their destinations. An instrument has already been invented by which no driver using it could lose his way.

This instrument placed on the radiator cap, with wires leading to the dashboard, is designed to catch signals transmitted through telegraph wires along the road. Each road would have its own code signal. Reference to a code book would tell the driver where he is.

DRAG RIVER FOR BODY

Police Believe Wm. E. Gay Shot and Body Thrown Into the Winooski River

MONTPELIER, Vt., May 20.—No trace has been found of William E. Gay of Granville, whose bloodstained and bullet-pierced clothing was discovered yesterday in a deserted automobile near Montpelier Junction.

Police believe that Gay was shot and his body thrown into the Winooski river, but a search of the river for five miles has failed to reveal a clue to his disappearance.

Gay, who is a farmer, left his home on the morning of May 15, carrying $140 in cash, which he said he intended to deposit in a bank at Randolph.

Victor Jewett for Speaker

It is not certain that there will be a vacancy and if the vacancy occurs, a free-for-all contest will result.

Speaker B. Loring Young has decided that he will seek the republican nomination for attorney-general in the event that J. Weston Allen, the present incumbent, decides to leave that office.

Mr. Allen is understood to have decided not to seek re-election, although his mind is still open on the question of whether he should seek the governorship.

Should there be a vacancy in the office of speaker, there will be no lack of candidates, and if any one of those now contemplating it is elected, the commonwealth will be assured of capable service.

Jewett for Speaker

Foremost among the present candidates, probably, is Rep. Victor Jewett of Lowell, who is now rounding out his 13th year of continuous service, a record which is surpassed only by that of Rep. Edward F. Harrington of Fall River.

Rep. Jewett is at present the republican "wild" of the house—that is, he is the ranking member of the committee on rules, the speaker's cabinet, and is looked upon always as the representative of the speaker on the floor. To him republican members look for guidance as to the desires of the presiding officer.

Speaker Young served as whip under former Speaker Joseph E. Warner, and won the prevailing officer's place without a contest when the latter retired. Hence it has been anticipated that Jewett would follow the same course, but while he may win the place, it will not be handed to him without a real fight.

While no positive announcement of his candidacy has been made, it is assumed by his friends that Rep. John C. his candidacy has been made, it is assumed for promotion. Rep. Hull is chairman of the judiciary committee, considered the most important in the house, and carrying with it what has been known as the "titular" leadership. He has been in the house since 1916.

Jewett's Friends Sore

During recent weeks Rep. Hull has been given a lot of practice as presiding officer, Speaker Young having selected him for temporary speaker on nearly every occasion when he has been obliged to be absent. This fact has caused no little resentment among Jewett's friends, who are said to feel that Young has decided to throw his strength, in the event of his retirement, to Hull.

During the past week, however, there has been a lot of corridor gossip involving the name of Rep. Merle D. Graves of Springfield as a possibility, and the suggestion has taken on considerable momentum. Rep. Graves is serving only his second year in the house—a circumstance which will probably defeat him—but he has already taken a front rank among the members because of his ability in debate. He seldom addresses the house, a fact which adds to his effectiveness when he does participate in discussions.

Perhaps it should be noted that Jas. J. Myers of Cambridge, speaker in the four years beginning with 1900, laid claim to being a western Massachusetts man. He always contended that since the line showing the then center of population passed east with 1900, he was entitled to be considered as living in the western end of the state.

Important Motor Bill

After several years of agitation, indications are that the legislature is about to pass a law requiring every owner of a motor vehicle to make provision which will permit persons injured by such motor vehicle to recover damages for their injuries.

The pending bill, which has already passed the house, and will come before the senate for action on Monday, provides that before registering a motor vehicle, the owner must file with the commissioner of insurance either a policy of insurance, a bond executed by a surety company or secured by individual endorsements, or securities to the amount of $2500.

State Control Fight

The "state control" fight is still very much up in the air, being assigned for discussion in the senate Monday. At present it is a toss-up whether the bill will be defeated, or will pass in its present form or in one which will bear little resemblance to the present measure.

This week's vote, 18 to 17 in favor of the Dills bill, was taken under circumstances which made it appear not to reflect the real attitude of the senators, and no one knows just how the cat will jump Monday.

One of the amusing features of the situation is that Senator Zerkow of Winchester, who was turned down almost unanimously, earlier in the session, on his bill for removal of the state prison from Charlestown, now appears to have jockeyed the senate into a position where they must consider the project as an amendment to the state control bill, and may be able to force acceptance of his measure if the larger bill is to pass.

COAL

It would be both unbecoming and unbusinesslike for us now to make any suggestion to you relating to your future supply, but we did not believe would be to your interest to follow, and in urging you to now take in such a portion of the coal as will be necessary to meet your early fall requirements, we are using our best judgment.

Coal may be somewhat less in price on later deliveries, and again it may not be at this point we have no knowledge to make a definite statement, but the chances for sweeping reductions in either the mine costs or the railroad tariffs are lessened as the suspension of raising contracts and production is reduced by millions of tons each month. The fact should be borne in mind by consumers as its effect on supply will be materially felt during the months of greatest demand.

If the larger buyers consider it essential to protect themselves now, and we assume that they give the matter serious thought, we certainly feel free in advising customers to do likewise, and without delay.

does everyone else, at the earliest possible moment, and fully realize that it cannot be operated and maintained properly on air, but if money is to be appropriated for its upkeep it is going to come through proper channels, or I will not have anything to do with it.

"Just as long as the order of the council is not to appropriate this money by transferring it from the surplus account, I absolutely refuse to even read it," snapped the president of the council. "It is not sound finance and the mayor knows it just as well as I do. I understand that money can be taken from surplus overlay only in extraordinary or unforeseen circumstances and maintenance of the auditorium, neither is extraordinary nor unforeseen."

Salvation Army Drive Is On

Continued

Three weeks ago, a committee of local business men met in the chamber of commerce with Adl. Arnold and pledged their support to him and to his cause. Since that time various committees have been working quietly and have matters in hand now which lack only the final punch to put over.

Some who have watched the fine results this organization has accomplished within the past year doubt but what the money is needed, and will be used to aid the needy and unfortunate. With business conditions not of the best, and a number of people unemployed, the Army has been a means for these seeking aid.

Lowell people dug deep into their pockets at Thanksgiving and Christmas time to aid the Salvation Army in its drive for dinners for the poor. Lowell people were gratified at the results of these dinners. And again when the Army appealed for funds with which to maintain its soup kitchen, Lowell people again have been taken care of by the Army. For this drive the Army has adopted the slogan of "Help us to help others." These five words express the reason for the Army's latest appeal.

Mayor Brown has issued the following proclamation:

The Home Services Appeal of the Salvation Army starts today and will continue for a period of ten days. This most worthy organization is entitled to generous support from the public. In a quiet and unostentatious manner this noble organization is doing, day and night, a wonderful work for the uplift and betterment of humanity.

The Salvation Army does the work of charity that you would like to do. It instills spiritual peace and comfort, as well as physical improvement in the individual. Why not make the Salvation Army the official medium

DANCERS MAKE MERRY
AT THE KASINO

The Kasino was well crowded again last night, on its second evening of the season, and the dancers are fast realizing that the time for summer dance pavilions has arrived at last. The change in weather yesterday made the evening an ideal one for dancing and those in attendance enjoyed it to the utmost. Again tonight, the large hall will be open, and on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of next week, as well. Saturday night has ever been a banner night at this popular dance resort and indications lead the management to believe that this will be even more noticeable this season. With the most spacious and best cared for dance floor in Lowell, extra fine music in abundant variety and many other attractive features, the far-famed Kasino is certain to be a drawing card during the summer season.

SOLVE CHINA'S PROBLEMS

Peace Awaits Outcome of Military Activities North of Tien-Tsin

Gen. Wu Announces Unification Scheme—Hopes to Win Approval of South

PEKING, May 20.—(By the Associated Press)—Solution of China's internal problems, including unification of the north and south, await the outcome of the military activities north of Tien-Tsin, where the armies of Gen. Chang Tso-Lin and Gen. Wu Pei-fu face each other.

Gen. Wu, who defeated Chang in their recent campaign near Peking, has declared he will not fight again if Chang peacefully withdraws his forces north of the Great Wall, and the most important question to be considered now is the establishment of a constitutional government.

A Tien-Tsin dispatch last night reported that Chang's troops had completely evacuated Lianchow, and that Chang himself and 19 trainloads of soldiers had already gone outside the Great Wall. The retreat was attributed either to Gen. Wu's outflanking movement or to trouble in Manchuria.

Gen. Wu is convinced that Chang contemplates establishing an independent empire in Manchuria, but believes the republic is capable of overthrowing such a government. It is said that, if necessary, an expedition will be sent into Manchuria to reunite the province with China proper.

Wu has announced that he is supporting a unification scheme which he believes will win the approval of the southern government headed by Sun Yat Sen, the seat of which is at Canton.

The chief features of the scheme are:

First: Recall the old parliament which was dissolved five years ago, and restore the provisional constitution adopted by the republic during the first year of its existence.

Second: Create a national army controlled and paid by the central government.

Third: The civil governors of the provinces to be responsible directly to the central government.

Fourth: Texas to be collected by the central government only.

Fifth: Local self-government for each province.

Sixth: The magistrates to be elected by the people.

Seventh: The provincial police, not the national army, to be responsible for the maintenance of peace in the provinces.

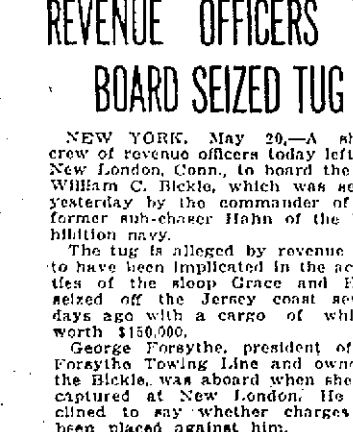

Importance is attached to the provision for reassembling the old parliament, as the majority of the members now reside in Canton, and it is believed that by inviting them to reconvene the country, Wu has removed any grounds for opposition on the part of Sun Yat Sen.

REVENUE OFFICERS TO BOARD SEIZED TUG

NEW YORK, May 20.—A shipload of revenue officers today left for New London, Conn., to board the tug William C. Bickel, which was seized yesterday by the commander of the former sub-chaser Hahn of the Prohibition navy.

The tug is alleged by revenue men to have been implicated in the activities of the "Hooper" crew, and was seized off the Jersey coast several days ago with a cargo of whiskey worth $150,000.

George Forsythe, president of the Foraythe Towing Line and owner of the Bickel, was aboard when she was captured at New London. He declined to say whether charges had been placed against him.

P. T. BARNUM WAS RIGHT PLANNING COMMISSION

Lowell Storekeeper Loses $55
by Taking Worthless Ring
for Security

When P. T. Barnum made the crack "That there is one born every minute and two to catch him," he surely said something. At least that is what a merchant who keeps a store not far from Toward corner of the city has experienced yesterday in which he was forced out of 55 perfectly good American dollars.

Today the merchant admitted to the police that he had passed through a soft place in his life when he allowed the "stealers" to hand him a worthless ring in exchange for $55. All the merchant has to show for his transaction is one ring, worth "nothing" on a jeweler's say-so, about a $1 on the market, $200 in the estimation of the stealer, and a whole lot of experience.

But here is the story: Yesterday, as the merchant was resting his elbow on a counter, with his chin cupped in his hands, and dreaming of the good old days when business was always rushing and the tall ones sold for five cents a throw, a rather stout, well-dressed man quivered at the door and made a small purchase. Carelessly slipping a coin onto the counter, he turned to make his way out of the store. At this point, a man whom we will call Mr. Brown, came into the store. Seeing the stout man, he grabbed him by the hand and said, "Why, how-do-you-do, Mr. Martin. I surely am glad to see you."

Mr. Martin returned a gruff greeting, and added, "Is your brother working yet?"

Mr. Brown: "Why, no, not yet."

Mr. Martin: "Well, send him around tomorrow and I'll put him to work."

With that the pair parted and Mr. Martin left the store. Mr. Brown also made a small purchase and just as he took his change said to the stealer, the contractor: "He's worth a million if he's worth a penny."

Mr. Brown then turned and walked out. So far, so good, for the merchant. Two cash sales on a dull day. But the plot is just beginning to thicken. A short while later Mr. Martin returned, seemingly in a tremor, and began scribbling on a check book and pen he began scribbling, the while saying, "I would like to get this check cashed. I guess you know me. I am Martin. I have just received a parcel post package C.O.D. and haven't the ready cash to pay for it. I am sure the merchant told Mr. Martin that it was against his principles to cash checks. This didn't seem to daunt Mr. Martin. Just as he was about to pull a sparkling ring from his finger and said, "Well here, give me $55 for this. It is worth $200. I will be back and get it in a few minutes."

Here the merchant made his first false step. He gave Mr. Martin the amount desired and took the ring. The ring has three stones in it, and the stones in the center are flanked by two sparkling stones on each side. After waiting about one hour, the merchant grew a bit uneasy. He began to wonder how much the ring was worth. Stepping into a jeweler's, he asked for an estimate on it. He almost fell to the floor when the reply came. "That ring is worth $200. The matter was reported to the police. At the present time, the ring is carefully guarded by Capt. Thomas H. Alkinson, while the jeweler, a well-dressed man who answers to the name of "Mr. Martin" and another, not quite so stout, whose name is unknown.

PLAN TO EXTEND BOY SCOUT WORK

The steering committee of the coming Boy Scout effort to strengthen and extend the work of the Boy Scouts of America in Lowell met last night at the chamber of commerce and considered ways and means which it is to lay before the general committee Monday night at 8 o'clock. It was the unanimous opinion that several suggestions should be presented to the general body for its consideration and approval. While these suggestions are not definite, they are the consensus of opinion of the committee and will probably be adopted in full, or with minor changes when the big meeting is held at the chamber of commerce Monday. Everyone interested in the Boy Scouts of America is invited and urged to attend this meeting. It has been impossible to get in touch with all those who are interested or who connected with the work. In the past, the committee is very anxious that everyone who is at all interested in making this movement what it should be in Lowell for Lowell boys will attend. To that end this notice is to be considered a personal invitation to all those who are so anxious to secure for our boys the many advantages of this Americanization and character building program to attend.

BOARD WILL HOLD SUNDAY MEETING

The board of public service will meet in conference tomorrow, Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock with representatives of the Engineering Service & Construction company, relative to completing the work of reconstructing Central bridge. A representative of the company has been to Allen, N. H., to obtain estimates of the cost of quanting the bridge and these estimates will be discussed at the meeting.

Chamber of Commerce Men
and Mayor to Discuss City
Planning Board

Secretary-Manager George F. Wells and President Edward Fisher of the chamber of commerce, and Mayor George H. Brown will meet in conference Monday relative to a city planning commission. No such commission has been appointed, but it is supposed that it will serve as an agent for the carrying out of the zoning system and the building code regulations both of which projects have been under consideration for some time.

Hearing directly upon the matter is the recent action of the superintendent of public buildings in handing out permits for two 10-foot buildings to be used as stores in the Highlands residential section.

Under a zoning system such structures could not be erected in residential neighborhoods, and it is believed that sooner or later the city will find it necessary to adopt such a plan. Monday's conference may pave the way for constructive action in the near future.

WANT MORGANS TO JOIN AD CLUB

A delegation from the Lowell Ad club attended the meeting of the Morgan club in high school annex last evening, with a proposal that the latter organization become a part of the Ad club.

The Morgan club is made up of students at the division of university extension evening classes conducted by Mr. J. J. Morgan of Boston at the high school during the winter. They chose the name in order to keep up interest in the classes among the students, and to band themselves together for classes next fall. As they are organized for educational purposes, it is felt that in becoming a component part of the Ad club they could not as a committee on education, as the larger club intends to interest itself in classes of various descriptions next season.

GOOD ADVICE FROM SEC. DAVIS

Here is a piece of advice that should receive the serious attention of manufacturers who are trying to cut wages to starvation levels:

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, speaking before the National Association of Manufacturers at its annual meeting in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, urged the manufacturers not to "deflate wages too far," lest they hurt their own business by reducing the workers' purchasing power, and to add the department of labor in bringing about an "armistice" in industry.

For employers "to trim their wage scales to the needs of the hungry unemployed at their gates" would be a "terrible blunder of shortsightedness," he said. "If you tell the worker with resentment now, he will pay you back in the same coin when he gets the chance." Secretary Davis pointed out that the manufacturers at the meeting made a countless number of articles in daily use in American workers' homes. "Cripple the biggest selling third of your public and what volume of your sales of clothing, food and conveniences can you hope to continue?" he asked.—Daily News-Record.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

League of Catholic Women Will Hold Annual Business Meeting Tomorrow

Associate hall tomorrow afternoon will be the scene of the annual business meeting and election of officers of the League of Catholic Women. Mrs. J. T. Donohue will preside and the meeting will be held at 2:30 sharp.

The list of candidates to be submitted by the nominating committee has not been made known, but it is reported that great pressure has been brought to bear upon Mrs. Donohue to stand for reelection as president. Mrs. Donohue, it is said, has personally urged the committee to seek another candidate, as the work of the past year has called for tremendous sacrifices of time on her part and she feels that someone else should be given the honor of presiding over one of the largest women's organizations in the country, with 3000 or more members.

Mrs. Donohue, besides serving as president and acting as chairman of the entertainment committee, served as head of this committee for the two previous years, and the numerous trips to Boston and other places as president of the Lowell league and with the object of securing talent for monthly meetings have resulted in her time being almost completely occupied by affairs of the league. However, if she consents to re-election, the league is assured of another most successful and pleasurable winter season, when it resumes activities next fall.

MAYOR HOLDS UP BADGE REQUISITION

Mayor George H. Brown has held up a requisition submitted by the chief of the fire department for the council committee on public safety, for badges that will pass them beyond fire lines.

The mayor said that the fire department had no right to demand that the council committee on public safety, which he does not believe that the councilors need any such badges and subsequently has withheld approval of the requisition. Eight badges are asked for.

SCARCITY OF MILL HELP WHAT THE MAYOR WILL DO

Report at Strike Headquarters That Help is Scarce in Syracuse

Orders plentiful and a scarcity of help is the report that was received at strike headquarters from officials of cotton mills in Syracuse, N. Y., yesterday and as a result 12 weavers, who were formerly employed at the Hamilton mill left Lowell last evening for Syracuse, where they have been promised employment.

According to a letter received at headquarters the cotton mills of the New York city have orders that will keep them busy day and night for some time to come. The letter also contained a demand for skilled help from this city and nine men and three women have responded to the call.

Frank Stimpson, secretary of the strike committee, stated today that the letter from the Syracuse mills did not cause a surprise in strike circles, for although the local cotton mills are practically idle, mills in other parts of the country that are producing the same line of goods that are being manufactured here, are in their busiest season. This, he attributes to the fact that because of the action of the local mill officials in reducing wages, and that what should have come here have been transferred to mills that can handle them.

Mr. Stimpson stated that a great many people are leaving this city because of the conditions in the cotton mills and among those who are going are many skilled operatives, whose places will be hard to fill when the mills start up again. "Some of them, he said, 'are disgusted with conditions in the textile industry of New England and they are setting on farms, while others are going to other cities, where they are getting better wages and it is fair to assume that once properly settled in other cities they will never return to Lowell. The mill officials are the only ones who can stop this exodus, but will they do it?"

John Hanley and ten young women connected with the strike at Syracuse are collecting funds for the local strikers. The Lowell people, who are being assisted by members of the Central Labor union of this city, are selling rosettes on the various streets of the city and it is believed that the amount realized will be very substantial.

General Organizer Thomas J. Reagan has gone to Bennington, Vt., where he will spend a few days organizing the cotton mill strikers. He will carry the banner of the United Textile Workers of America. A mass meeting, mostly for the benefit of the Portuguese-speaking people of this city, will be held on the South common at 2:30 o'clock, tomorrow afternoon. John Hanley will preside and John Campos of Fall River will be the principal speaker. His address to be delivered in the Portuguese language. Charles D. Anderson of the Trades and Labor council, will also speak.
